Other investigators, on the opposite extreme, have suggested that the study may have been an overestimate of the actual prevalence of AIDS.

the 1990s, the number of people who have been infected with HIV has increased significantly. In 1990, there were approximately 1 million people living with HIV in the United States. By 2000, this number had increased to over 4 million. The increase in the number of people living with HIV is due to a number of factors, including the widespread use of intravenous drugs, the use of contaminated needles, and the use of blood products. The increase in the number of people living with HIV has also led to an increase in the number of people who have died from AIDS. In 1990, there were approximately 10,000 deaths from AIDS in the United States. By 2000, this number had increased to over 40,000.
