Chapter 29 Arthropods and Echinoderms

Section 1: Arthropods

KEY IDEAS

- > What are distinguishing features of arthropods?
- > How is molting an important feature of the arthropod life cycle?
- > What are the four main types of arthropods?

ARTHROPOD CHARACTERISTICS

- > What are distinguishing features of arthropods?
- > Arthropods are characterized by having a segmented body, jointed appendages, and a hard external skeleton.
  - Segmented Body
    - Arthropods have three distinct body segments—the head, the thorax (mid-body region), and the abdomen.
    - In some arthropods, such as crabs, the head is fused with the thorax, which forms the cephalothorax.
  - Jointed appendages
    - An appendage is a structure that extends from the arthropod's body wall.
    - Unlike the parapodia and setae of annelids, arthropod appendages have joints that bend.
    - The name Arthropoda means "joint footed."
  - Exoskeleton
    - The rigid outer layer of the arthropod body is called an exoskeleton, which is composed primarily of the carbohydrate chitin.
    - The exoskeleton provides protection against predators and helps prevent water loss.
    - An exoskeleton does not grow; arthropods shed their exoskeleton periodically and form a new, larger one.
  - Respiration and Circulation
    - Many land arthropods breathe through a network of fine tubes. Each tube is called a trachea. Other land arthropods breathe through book lungs. Most aquatic arthropods breathe through gills.
    - The circulatory system of arthropods is open, which means that blood is not always contained within vessels.
