Topic 1: Classification of Life

▼ What are the five characteristics of all living organisms?

Organized, metabolism, respond to stimuli, reproduction, and evolve.

▼ What is entropy?

Entropy is the act of the universe of constantly going to chaos. Our cells constantly work to reverse this, without that, our bodies would fall apart.

▼ Are viruses classified as living or non-living organisms? Why or why not?

Viruses are not classified as living organisms because they need a host to reproduce.

▼ Who came up with the first written record of the classification system? What was it called and how did it work?

Aristotle came up with a system called "Scala naturae", also known as the great chain of being. Organisms were organized in a linear ranked from complexity. God, angels, humans, animals, plants, minerals...

▼ What was systema naturae? Who established it and when?

Carl Linnaeus came up with systema naturae in 1735. It was a binominal naming system with a genus name followed by the specific epithet.

▼ What is the taxonomic hierarchy?

A grand overview of the naming system. This hierarchy is meant to reflect evolutionary history; this why the hierarchy is constantly changing as we learn more about evolutionary history.

▼ What is taxonomy?

The branch of biology that names and classifies species into groups of increasing breadth.

▼ What are domains? Name the three different domains?
