Biology Gcse Paper 2014:

Research and Practice in Chemistry Education Madeleine Schultz, Siegbert Schmid, Gwendolyn A. Lawrie, 2019-04-06

This book brings together fifteen contributions from presenters at the 25th IUPAC International Conference on Chemistry Education 2018 held in Sydney. Written by a highly diverse group of chemistry educators working within different national and institutional contexts with the common goal of improving student learning, the book presents research in multiple facets of the cutting edge of chemistry education, offering insights into the application of learning theories in chemistry combined with practical experience in implementing teaching strategies. The chapters are arranged according to the themes: novel pedagogies, dynamic teaching environments, new approaches in assessment and professional skills, each of which is of substantial current interest to the science education communities. Providing an overview of contemporary practice, this book helps improve student learning outcomes. Many of the teaching strategies presented are transferable to other disciplines and are of great interest to the global community of tertiary chemistry educators as well as readers in the areas of secondary STEM education and other disciplines.

Chinese Students in UK Further Education Rosemary A. Reynolds, 2017-12-15

Chinese students in the UK have been increasing in number for many years, yet competition from other Western educators and increasing investment in China's own education system has led to concern that UK institutions may soon see a decline in their market share. Dr Reynolds addresses this issue in Chinese Students in UK Further Education by attempting to understand students' experiences from their perspective. Beginning with an exploration of why these students choose to come and study in the UK and why they are coming at younger ages, the book goes on to discuss topics such as risk, technology and diversity in order to understand which factors have the greatest influence on where they choose to study and whether they choose to remain at an institution. Drawing on data from two different education institutions, providers of GCSE A level programmes for students aged 16-18 years, Dr Reynolds attempts to understand what these students experience during their studies, how they manage new social relationships and whether, upon course completion, they achieved the results they desired at the outset. Moreover, the book aims to ascertain whether the students feel in hindsight that the decision to risk investing in UK further education was right and what they might communicate about UK study to contacts in China and elsewhere. The book examines what further education institutions do well and where they might improve to help develop Chinese students' educational experiences. As such, it will be essential reading for academics, researchers and postgraduates in the fields of further education, sociology of education, international and intercultural education and mobility studies.

Advancing Human Assessment Randy E. Bennett, Matthias von Davier, 2017-10-17

This book is open access under a CC BY-NC 2.5 license. Understanding Young People's Science Aspirations Louise Archer,Jennifer DeWitt,2016-08-12 Understanding Young People s Science Aspirations offers new evidence and understanding about how young people develop their aspirations for education learning and ultimately careers in science Integrating new findings from a major research study with a wide ranging review of existing international literature it brings a distinctive sociological analytic lens to the field of science education The book offers an explanation of how some young people do become dedicated to follow science and what might be done to increase and broaden this population exploring the need for increased scientific literacy among citizens to enable them to exercise agency and lead a life underpinned by informed decisions about their own health and their environment Key issues considered include why we should study young people s science aspirations the role of families social class and science capital in career choice the links between ethnicity gender and science aspirations the implications for research policy and practice Set in the context of widespread international policy concern about the urgent need to improve increase and diversify participation in post 16 science this key text considers how we must encourage a supply of appropriately qualified future scientists and workers in STEM industries and ensure a high level of scientific literacy in society It is a crucial read for all training and practicing science teachers education researchers and academics as well as anyone invested in the desire to help fulfil young people s science aspirations

Science Teaching in Schools Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Science and Technology Committee,2006-11-05 The Committee s report examines science and mathematics teaching in secondary schools in England focusing on the following issues the take up of science and mathematics at GCSE and A level the provision of careers advice to students problems in the recruitment and retention of teachers the quality of teaching methods and the role of continuing professional development The Committee finds that effective science teaching in schools is essential both in order to ensure a satisfactory general level of scientific literacy in society and to enable the next generation of scientists and engineers to progress into higher education and beyond. It argues that the current examination system forces students to study an excessively narrow range of subjects at too early an age and it recommends that the Government should reconsider the Tomlinson proposals for a broader diploma based system for 14-19 year old students based on the International Baccalaureate. This would ensure that students receive a more rounded education and are not made to over specialise before they are able to see the merits of studying science and mathematics. Concerns are also raised about the shortage of science teachers particularly specialist physics and chemistry teachers, the quality of careers advice in schools and the importance of practical science in schools.
