

Cell Division Self-Assessment Worksheet 1

Answer Key

Directions: Complete each one of the following questions as directed.

1. A sheep somatic cell has 54 chromosomes. On the basis of this information, answer the following questions:

Question	Your Response
N	27
2N	54
Number of pairs of homologous chromosomes	27
Number of chromosomes in a gamete	27
Haploid chromosome number	27
Diploid chromosome number	54

2. Why is meiosis I also called reductional division?

Because homologous chromosome pairs separate during meiosis I. Therefore, each resulting daughter cell will have $\frac{1}{2}$ as many chromosomes (i.e. the chromosome number has been reduced).

3. What is meiosis II also called equational division?

Because the two parts of each duplicated chromosome separate during meiosis II. Therefore, each resulting daughter cell has the same number of chromosomes as the cell that divided (i.e. the chromosome number is NOT reduced but is equal).

4. True or False: Crossing over occurs during mitosis and meiosis.

In order for crossing over to occur, homologous chromosome pairs must join together. This happens in prophase of meiosis I but does NOT happen in mitosis (they just line up end to end).
