Abraham Lincoln: The 16th President of the United States

Abraham Lincoln was born on February 12, 1809, in a log cabin in Kentucky. He grew up in a poor family and had to work hard. As a child, he loved to read books, even became very smart and wanted to please.

When he grew older, Lincoln became a politician. In 1860, he was elected as President. His time as president was a difficult time for the country. The Southern states were fighting over slavery, and the Civil War, a war between the North and the South, had begun.

Lincoln worked hard to end slavery and keep the country together. One of his most famous actions was the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863, which freed the slaves in the Southern states who were still fighting. The 13th Amendment, which ended slavery, was passed during his presidency.

Abraham Lincoln is remembered as one of the greatest presidents in American history. He was known for his honesty, kindness, and strong leadership during a time of great division. Sadly, he was assassinated in 1865, but his legacy lives on. Today, we honor him with the Lincoln Memorial and celebrate his life on Presidents' Day.
