

Do You Know the Fish You're Eating?

Third fisherman: ...Master, I marvel how the fishes live in the sea.

First fisherman: Why, as men do a-land; the great ones eat up the little ones."

— Shakespeare

OVERVIEW

Students design and conduct research to discover firsthand what type of fish is being sold in their community, where this fish comes from, and whether that fish is an overfished species. This lesson gives students a chance to do their own market research and discover first-hand what type of fish is being sold to the public. It also provides an introduction to fish as an important food source and as an industry controlled partly by supply and demand. The results that emerge from this lesson will likely lead your students to question the role of public education in seafood choices for sustainable fisheries.

OBJECTIVES

Design a research project.

Conduct market research regarding the types and sources of fish sold in the local community.
