Eugenics in the Garden Fabiola López-Durán, 2018-03-01 As Latin American elites strove to modernize their cities at the turn of the twentieth century they eagerly adopted the eugenic theory that improvements to the physical environment would lead to improvements in the human race Based on Jean Baptiste Lamarck's theory of the inheritance of acquired characteristics this strain of eugenics empowered a utopian project that made race gender class and the built environment the critical instruments of modernity and progress Through a transnational and interdisciplinary lens Eugenics in the Garden reveals how eugenics fueled by a fear of social degeneration in France spread from the realms of medical science to architecture and urban planning becoming a critical instrument in the crafting of modernity in the new Latin world Journeying back and forth between France Brazil and Argentina Fabiola López Durán uncovers the complicity of physicians and architects on both sides of the Atlantic who participated in a global strategy of social engineering legitimized by the authority of science In doing so she reveals the ideological trajectory of one of the most celebrated architects of the twentieth century Le Corbusier who deployed architecture in what he saw as the perfecting and whitening of man The first in depth interrogation of eugenics influence on the construction of the modern built environment Eugenics in the Garden convincingly demonstrates that race was the main tool in the geopolitics of space and that racism was and remains an ideology of progress
