Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was conducted in a community-based setting. The participants were 12 women who were sedentary and middle-aged. The training program consisted of 12 weeks of aerobic and strength training. The results showed that the training program had a positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the participants. The participants showed significant improvements in their physical fitness, including increased aerobic capacity, strength, and flexibility. They also showed significant improvements in their psychological health, including reduced stress, anxiety, and depression. The study suggests that a 12-week training program can be an effective way to improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
