

How Succession Planning and Career Pathing Work Together

SUCCESSION PLANNING

Career pathing is employee driven taking a bottom-up approach to development

Succession planning is employer driven - made to keep a business flowing

Career pathing provides insight to ideal candidates for certain roles in succession planning

Bottom-up career pathing plus top-down succession planning allows management and HR to tailor their employees objectives and career goals to those of the company

Positions filled on this basis are not always qualified nor want the role

Better qualified employees through career pathing are likely to thrive in needed positions

Top-down management excludes a large portion of talent pool
