How to Move a Disabled Lift Truck

WARNING

Use extra care when towing a lift truck if there is a problem with any of the following:

- Brakes do not operate correctly.
- Steering does not operate correctly.
- Tires are damaged.
- Traction conditions are bad.
- The lift truck must be moved on a steep grade.

If the hydraulic pump motor, which includes the steering control functions, does not operate, steering control of the lift truck can be slow. This can make the control of the lift truck difficult. If there is no electrical power, there is no power steering. DO NOT tow the lift truck if there is no power. Poor traction can cause the disabled lift truck or towing vehicle to slide. Steep grades will require additional brake force to stop the lift truck.
