Counter-attack and Other Poems Siegfried Sassoon, 1919 Counter-attack and Other Poems, by Siegfried Sassoon,... Siegfried Sassoon, 1919 Counter-Attack and Other Poems Siegfried Sassoon, 2018-08-05 Counter Attack and Other Poems Siegfried Sassoon posted Lewis guns well placed And clink of shovels deepening the shallow trench The place was rotten with dead green clumsy legs High booted sprawled and grovelled along the saps And trunks face downward in the sucking mud Wallowed like trodden sand bags loosely filled And naked sodden buttocks mats of hair Bulged clotted heads slept in the plastering slime And then the rain began the jolly old rain A yawning soldier knelt against the bank Staring across the morning blar with fog He wondered when the Allemands would get busy And then of course they started with five nines Traversing sure as fate and never a dud Mute in the clamour of shells he watched them burst Spouting dark earth and wire with gusts from hell While posturing giants dissolved in drifts of smoke He crouched and flinched dizzy with galloping fear Sick for escape loathing the strangled horror And butchered fr We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience Counter-Attack, and Other Poems HardPress, Sassoon Siegfried 1886-1967, 2013-01 Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts 1 We have not used OCR Optical Character Recognition as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos 2 In books where there are images such as portraits maps sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy Counter-Attack and Other Poems Siegfried Sassoon, 2016-06-21 Counter-attack, and Other Poems Siegfried Sassoon, 1918 Counter-Attack, and Other Poems (Classic Reprint) Siegfried Sassoon, 2015-07-07 Excerpt from Counter Attack and Other Poems In appearance he is tall big boned loosely built He is clean shaven pale or with a flush has a heavy jaw wide mouth with the upper lip slightly protruding and the curve of it very pronounced like that of a shrivelled leaf as I have noticed is common in many poets His nose is

aquiline the nostrils being wide and heavily arched This characteristic and the fullness depth and heat of his dark eyes give him the air of a sullen falcon He speaks slowly enunciating the words as if they pained him in a voice that has something of the troubled thickness apparent in the voices of those who emerge from a deep grief As he speaks his large hands roughened by trench toil and by riding wander aimlessly until some emotion grips him when the knuckles harden and he clutches at his knees or at the edge of the table And all the while he will be breathing hard like a man who has swum a distance When he reads his poems he chants and one would think that he communed with himself save that at the pauses he shoots a powerful glance at the listener Between the poems he is still but moves his lips About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Beacon School Sevenoaks Kent then Marlborough College Wiltshire and finally at Clare College Cambridge where from 1905 to 1907 he read history He went down from Cambridge without a degree and spent the next few years indulging himself hunting playing cricket and writing verse However motivated by patriotism Sassoon joined the Sussex Yeomanry of the British Army as the threat of war escalated into open conflict His early poems exhibit a Romantic dilettantish sweetness but his war poetry moves to an increasingly discordant beat stridently conveying the ugly truths of the trenches to an audience hitherto placated by jingoistic and patriotic propaganda Sassoon's periods of duty on the Western Front were marked by near suicidal missions including the single handed capture of a German trench Armed with grenades he scattered sixty German soldiers In 1919 took up a post as literary editor of the socialist Daily Herald Here he was responsible for employing several eminent reviewers including E M Forster and Charlotte Mew Sassoon also commissioned new material from the likes of Arnold Bennett and Osbert Sitwell Sassoon was now in 1928 preparing to take a new direction by branching out into prose with Memoirs of a Fox Hunting Man This anonymously published first volume of a fictionalised autobiography was acclaimed as a classic bringing its author fame as a humorous writer Other volumes including his own autobiography based on his youth and early manhood across three volumes followed In his last years Sassoon converted to Roman Catholicism and was admitted to the faith at Downside Abbey in Somerset Siegfried Loraine Sassoon CBE MC died from stomach cancer on 1st September 1967 a week before his 81st birthday

Recent War Lyrics Leona Whitworth Logue, 1928 Soldiers Don't Go Mad Charles Glass, 2023-06-06 The 1 Amazon UK bestseller in War Poetry A brilliant and poignant history of the friendship between two great war poets Siegfried Sassoon and Wilfred Owen alongside a narrative investigation of the origins of PTSD and the literary response to World War I From the moment war broke out across Europe in 1914 the world entered a new unparalleled era of modern warfare Soldiers faced relentless machine gun shelling incredible artillery power flame throwers and gas attacks Within the first four months of the war the British Army recorded the nervous collapse of ten percent of its officers the loss of such manpower to mental illness not to mention death and physical wounds left the army unable to fill its ranks Second Lieutenant Wilfred Owen was twenty four years old when he was admitted to the newly established Craiglockhart War Hospital for treatment of shell shock A burgeoning poet trying to make sense of the terror he had witnessed he read a collection of poems from a fellow officer Siegfried Sassoon and was impressed by his portrayal of the soldier's plight One month later Sassoon himself arrived at Craiglockhart having refused to return to the front after being wounded during battle Though Owen and Sassoon differed in age class education and interests both were outsiders as soldiers unfit to fight as gay men in a homophobic country and as Britons unwilling to support a war likely to wipe out an entire generation of young men But more than anything else they shared a love of the English language and its highest expression of poetry As their friendship evolved over their months as patients at Craiglockhart each encouraged the other in their work in their personal reckonings with the morality of war as well as in their treatment Therapy provided Owen

Sassoon and fellow patients with insights that allowed them express themselves better and for the 28 months that Craiglockhart was in operation it notably incubated the era's most significant developments in both psychiatry and poetry. Drawing on rich source materials as well as Glass's own deep understanding of trauma and war, Soldiers Don't Go Mad tells for the first time the story of the soldiers and doctors who struggled with the effects of industrial warfare on the human psyche. Writing beyond the battlefields to the psychiatric couch of Craiglockhart but also the literary salons, halls of power and country houses, Glass charts the experiences of Owen and Sassoon and of their fellow soldier poets alongside the greater literary response to modern warfare. As he investigates the roots of what we now know as post-traumatic stress disorder, Glass brings historical bearing to how we must consider war's ravaging effects on mental health and the ways in which creative work helps us come to terms with even the darkest of times. Twelve Centuries of English Poetry and Prose Alphonso Gerald Newcomer, Alice Ebba Andrews, Howard Judson Hall, 1928 Branch Library News New York Public Library, 1917 News Notes of California Libraries California State Library, 1918 Vols for 1971 include annual reports and statistical summaries Brooklyn Public Library News Bulletin Brooklyn Public Library, 1918 Reference Catalogue of Current Literature, 1928
