

CAUTION

CAUTION: READ ALL literature materials supplied with your boat prior to operating any of the systems and components. Any electrical accessories you would like to add to your boat should be installed by your dealer or a qualified electrician. Improper installation could result in damage to your boat's electrical system and/or cause a fire.

IMPORTANT: Operation, maintenance, and safety information is outlined by the manufacturer of most installed equipment. Properly operating and maintaining the equipment on your boat will help you to enjoy many years of SAFE boating.

12-Volt DC Electrical System

Your boat's 12-Volt DC system obtains its power from a battery. The battery is charged through the engine-driven alternator and/or an AC battery charger. The voltmeter on the helm dash instrument panel indicates the charging level of the battery. Depending on which Crestliner model you own, there could be fuses or breakers on either the distribution panel or instrument panel, that control the operation of DC equipment on your boat.

The negative terminal of the battery is connected to the grounding studs of the main engine. This type of negative ground system is the approved system for marine DC electrical systems. If additional equipment is to be installed, it must be adaptable to the negative ground system. When installing additional equipment, ensure that each item's current supply is taken from the main DC distribution panel. All required additional circuit protection must also be added at the DC distribution panel.

NOTE: Power feeds for accessory equipment must NOT be taken from the voltmeter terminals.

A WARNING

WARNING: Do not use E85 fuel in this product. Do not use fuel or additives containing more than 10% alcohol by volume (methanol or ethanol).

Fuel System (Figure 2 f)

The internal fuel system on board your boat is designed to meet or exceed federal requirements, at the time of manufacture, of the U.S. Coast Guard.

The fuel system has been factory inspected and pressure-tested in accordance with regulations in effect at time of manufacture. Additionally, each fuel tank must pass rigid tests and inspections performed by the fuel tank manufacturer.

Before you take delivery of your boat, check that your dealer completes a full inspection of the entire fuel system. You should also inspect the entire system at least once a year.

1. Fuel Fill Plate — All Boats equipped with an internal fuel tank may have a fuel fill plate and are labeled FUEL. Be sure to utilize the proper grade fuel as specified in your engine owner's manual.
2. Fuel Vent — The internal fuel tank is vented overboard. While the tank is being filled, the air is expelled by the fuel and escapes through the fuel vent. When the fuel tank is almost FULL, fuel will be ejected from the fuel vent.
3. Anti-Siphon Valve — Engine fuel pick up lines on boat boats are equipped with an anti-siphon valve where the line attaches to the internal fuel tank. The valve prevents gasoline from siphoning out of the fuel tank in the event of a fuel line separation.
4. Fuel Filter — The fuel filter supplied by engine manufacturers is installed on or near the engine. The filter should be replaced frequently to maintain an adequate supply of clean, uncontaminated fuel to the engine.
5. Fuel Tank — The internal fuel tank is accessible through a removable cover board and is equipped with a fuel vent line, fuel fill line, sending unit, and engine fuel pickup as shown in Figure 2.1. Some models with a permanent tank need to be visually inspected. Some models have a portable fuel tank.
