

Mark Dean and the impact he has made

Mark Dean was the mathematician who had invented the first gigahertz computer chip. Furthermore on this upmost interesting topic he was an inventor and a computer engineer who created the first lbn computer and developed the ISA bus. On top of his wondrous works he had a passion for technology and even made a tractor from scratch as a small project during his yonder years. Continuing on the subject he was also the first african-american IBM fellow and was a great student in school. Lastly, to conclude the short but interesting piece of information, Mark dean played football from 1917-2006 and was inspired by his father, who worked at Tennessee Valley Authority.
