Cyberbullying Causes Consequences And Coping Strategies Criminal Justice Recent Scholarship:

Cyberbullying Nicole L. Weber, William V. Pelfrey, 2014 Weber and Pelfrey examine qualitative and quantitative data collected from middle and high school students in a large urban area regarding the use of social technologies in cyberbullying perpetration and victimization They further explore the interconnectedness between the online and face to face environments created by these advancements in technology which may produce risk taking behaviors and school safety issues Students reported a carryover between environments during school and after school via social technology that create a constant access to peers and a reciprocal relationship between cyberbullying perpetrators and victims who become perpetrators in retaliation The book also provides insight from school staff regarding policies protocols and approaches to combating cyberbullying in school

LBGTQ+ Crime and Victimization Frances P. Bernat, 2023-05-08 This book provides research and analysis on an understudied topic the LBGTQ community as victims and offenders Most publications focus on LBGTQ history and the community s movement towards equality and acceptance in society and in law A focus on how the criminal justice system victimizes and marginalizes LBGTQ persons is needed Consequently this work includes chapters on members of the LBGTQ community who work in the criminal justice system forced sexual orientation efforts transgender legal concerns LBGTQ persons who are arrested and imprisoned and online dating hate crimes International scholars provide their individual stories about being gay bisexual or lesbian and working as a police or correctional officer Other international contributors explain their research on crime and how the law and criminal justice community does not provide LBGTQ persons with protection or support as offenders or victims This book will of interest to researchers and advanced students of Criminology Sociology Law and Gender Studies It was originally published as a special issue of the journal Women Criminal Justice

Bullying and Cyberbullying Conor Mc Guckin, Lucie Corcoran, 2016 Cyberbullying and online victimization in general are high on the public agenda As cyber technology continues to evolve we must consider how best we can support our children and young people in enjoying the benefits that come with the online world whilst also protecting them from harm This book provides a timely review and analyses of the international literature on cyberbullying Beginning with an overview of the evolution of international research to date the chapters deal with some of the fundamental issues facing researchers practitioners and policymakers The authors deal with issues such as how best to define cyberbullying what we currently know about the prevalence of the behaviour the role of gender in cyberbullying and alternative theoretical perspectives Cross national research is reviewed with the objective of highlighting the similarities across different nations whilst also emphasizing the uniqueness and importance of cultural context when attempting to intervene effectively Due to the research evident potential for harm as a consequence of cyberbullying it is important that we move towards appropriate coping and intervention strategies Therefore this book also focuses on effective coping strategies at an individual level and at a societal level examining issues such as education and legislation in relation to cyberbullying Furthermore the contemporary knowledge regarding prevention and intervention is explored with a number perspectives provided Ultimately this book presents a state of the art review of cyberbullying knowledge in 2016 and looks to the future with recommendations for development of theory research practice and policy

Cyberbullying through the New Media

Peter Smith, Georges Steffgen, 2013-12-04 Cyberbullying is one of the darker and more troubling aspects to the growing accessibility of new media technologies Children in developed countries engage with cyberspace at younger and younger ages and the use of the internet as a means to bully and harass has been greeted with alarm by educationalists parents the media and governments This important new book is the result of a four year international collaboration funded by the EU to better understand how we can cope and confront cyberbullying and how new media technologies can be used to actually support the victims of such abuse The articles initially define the historical and theoretical context to cyberbullying before examining key issues involved in managing this pervasive phenomenon Coverage includes The definition and measurement of cyberbullying The legal challenges in tackling cyberbullying across a number of international contexts The role of mobile phone companies and Internet service providers in monitoring and prevention How the media frame and present the issue and how that influences our understanding How victims can cope with the effects of cyberbullying and the guidelines and advice provided in different countries How cyber bullying can continue from school into further education and the strategies that can be used to prevent it The ways in which accessing youth voice or maximising the contribution of young people themselves to the research process can enhance our understanding The book concludes with practical guidance to help confront the trauma that cyberbullying can cause It will be a valuable resource for researchers students policy makers and administrators with an interest in how children and young people are rendered vulnerable to bullying and harassment through a variety of online channels

A Review of Cyberbullying Causes and Consequences Chrisanne M. Fordik, 2014 Cyberbullying occurs when an aggressor repeatedly sends harassing emails sends defaming instant messages or places disparaging posts on a blog or social media page with the intent of causing emotional harm to another individual The aggressor may be known to the victim or anonymous Cyberbullying affects a greater percentage of the population than more traditional forms of bullying Currently the majority of cyberbullying programs target social skills to prevent and minimize cyberbullying No programs address the preservation of Ego Strength defined as the ability to retain one's identity and maintain goal directed behavior in the face of stress and emotional turmoil The current review provides an overview of the consequences and symptoms of cyberbullying factors that facilitate cyberbullying factors that increase the chances that one will be targeted for cyberbullying and special cyberbullying circumstances that could lead to a more severe emotional and behavioral response in victims e.g. when a friend is revealed to be a bully bullying by groups Through the review we will make the case that enhancing Ego Strength through the improvement of problem solving skills stress tolerance skills and critical thinking skills i.e. helping at risk individuals understand that the aggressor's words are not accurate or truthful and improving their ability to regulate their emotions and find mature ways to end or move past the bullying situation may bolster at risk individuals ability to navigate the bullying situations without becoming emotionally overwhelmed and manifesting severe pathology e.g. depressed suicidal drug addicted etc While empowering at risk children with skills and coping strategies to tolerate and navigate bullying situations may not reduce the occurrence of cyberbullying at least not initially it may help these children move past a potentially damaging social situation and improve their chances of a successful transition to emerging and young adulthood

Cyberbullying Perpetration in a Black Metropolitan Sample of Adolescents Catherine S. Forster, 2024 Cyberbullying perpetration is associated with negative outcomes in social emotional and interpersonal functioning among youth Prior research suggests that a strong parent child relationship and parental limit setting of time spent online may reduce the risk of cyberbullying however few studies have empirically evaluated the effects of parental involvement Doty et al 2018 Furthermore few studies have examined the prevalence and impact of cyberbullying among minority youth specifically cyberbullying perpetration engagement Kowalski et al 2019 Miller 2011 The purpose of this investigation was to evaluate the incidence and prevalence of cyberbullying perpetration in a sample of 321 Black middle school students living in and around St Louis Missouri Students in this study completed a survey composed of items derived from the Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System developed by the Centers of Disease Control and other original scales developed by the University of Missouri St Louis Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice faculty This study addressed the following hypotheses using binary logistic regression with archival data 1 consistent with prior studies time online and history of traditional bullying perpetration will predict cyberbullying perpetration 2 parent child relationship parental awareness and parental limit setting will reduce the odds of cyberbullying perpetration 3 aggression risk taking and maladaptive coping skills will predict cyberbullying perpetration while adaptive coping skills will reduce the odds of cyberbullying perpetration The results indicated that time spent online and history of traditional bullying perpetration were significant predictors of cyberbullying perpetration Characteristics of parental involvement parent child relationship parental awareness and parental limit setting however were not significantly related Adaptive coping skills did not protect against cyberbullying perpetration Aggression risk taking nor maladaptive coping skills predicted cyberbullying perpetration Risk taking was indicated as a predictor of bullying perpetration generally The results of this study and implications for future interventions are discussed
