1. Define polar and nonpolar bonds using complete sentences. In your definition, make it clear what criteria you use to determine if a bond is polar or nonpolar.

A covalent link in which the bonding electrons are shared equally between the two atoms is referred to as a nonpolar covalent bond. Polar covalent bond: A covalent bond in which the atoms are attracted to electrons in uneven amounts, resulting in unequal sharing.

2. How are ionic bonds and covalent bonds different?

Covalent bonds arise when electrons are shared between two nonmetals, whereas ionic bonds form when electrons are exchanged between a nonmetal and a metal. An ionic bond is a chemical link that is created when two oppositely charged ions attract each other through electrostatic attraction.

3. What does electronegativity mean?

The tendency of an atom to attract the electrons of a bond enhances its electronegativity. In a covalent bond, two bound atoms share electrons equally if their electronegativity values are equal.

4. How do electronegativity values help us determine the type of bond created?

The degree to which an atom attracts electrons in a chemical bond is described by its electronegativity. The bond type of two atoms is determined by their electronegativity differences. The bond will have an ionic character if the electronegativity difference exceeds 1.7.
