

1.2 – Elements of Life

Describes the composition of macromolecules required by living organisms

Organisms must exchange matter with the environment to grow, reproduce, and maintain organization

Living systems require constant input of energy

- Law of conservation of energy – energy cannot be created or destroyed, only transformed, or transferred
- Living systems follow this law and need a constant input of energy to grow, reproduce, and maintain organization
- Living systems rarely use the energy stored in chemical bonds

- Carbohydrates –  $\text{CH}_2\text{O}$  (carbon, hydrogen, oxygen)
- Lipids –  $\text{CH}_2\text{O}$ , sometimes P (carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, phosphorus)
- Proteins –  $\text{CH}_2\text{ON}$  (carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, sulfur)
- Nucleic Acids –  $\text{CH}_2\text{ONP}$  (carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, phosphorus)

90% of life is made of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen

- Carbon is the element of life, all organic compounds have carbon, and inorganic compounds do not
- Carbon bonds with more carbon creating carbon skeletons which other atoms attach to, carbon skeletons allow for the creation of large, complex molecules
  - Carbon molecules can be used for energy storage & basic cell structures

1.3 – Intro to Biological Macromolecules

Describes the properties of the monomers and the type of bonds that connect the monomers in biological macromolecules

- Monomers are the specific chemical subunits that create polymers
- Polymers are the biological macromolecules made of many monomers
- Covalent bonds between monomers make polymers
- monomers have specific chemical properties allowing them to interact with each other, and are specific to the polymers they compose
