1. After WWII ca was a state hosting a population that was undereducated and seemingly underequipped for modern economy; ca a state with potential abyss but moved to a broad swath living out the California Dream; CA became the place to be(what is ca dream?)

What allowed many to realize their dream was just not their own efforts but also a broader collective commitment to public investments that made industry , higher education and suburbia happen;

A golden era driven by bipartisan commitment to good governance; racial gaps but it was the place to be; by 1962 most populous state; major investments in infrastructure helped state to prosper and attract migrants

2. Demise began in late 1960s; by 1970s frayed; wracked state on road to ripping itself apart; demographic change produced tensions; whites from Midwest saw POC as incapable of becoming integrated;

3-4Straight up the middle politics; increases in defense spending; $\frac{1}{4}$ of all defense contracts went to ca; suburban expansion; thriving middle class;

5. social compact existed; as seen in public education; master plan-codified the belief that the way to sustain California growth was not only by investing in physical capital but also people; spending increased ; enrollment in college soared; system of public investment, economic opportunity and access to education created;

But not all benefitted-segregation in housing; discrimination pervasive—racial covenants used; civil rights movement pushed for change triggering reaction in form of Prop 14;
