

Chapter 10

The Passive

CHAPTER SUMMARY

OBJECTIVE: Because the passive is frequently used in English, it is essential that second language learners be able to understand and use it on a frequent basis. This chapter highlights this important structure and offers plenty of controlled and less controlled practice to promote autonomous mastery of it.

APPROACH: The chapter begins by showing the relationship between active and passive sentences. After a brief explanation of transitive and intransitive sentences, the focus shifts to the omission of the by-phrase. Next, the passive is used with progressive verbs and modal auxiliaries. A section of the chapter then deals with other uses of past and present participles, concluding with some idiomatic expressions containing participles.

TERMINOLOGY: The term "passive" is used here most commonly without the additional term "voice." The term used for explicit identification of the agent in a passive structure is "the by-phrase" because the preposition by is its first element.

□ EXERCISE 1. Warm-up. Page 258

Time: 5–10 minutes

It might help to ask students to consider the action from the perspective of both the worm and the bird. You can also ask students to identify who is doing the action in each sentence.

CHART 10-1. Active Sentences and Passive Sentences. Page 258

Time: 5–10 minutes

The emphasis in this introductory chart is on the form of the passive as well as the meaning in equivalent active sentences.

The passive is most commonly used without a by-phrase. All the example sentences in the initial charts and exercises, however, include a by-phrase as an aid to understanding the form and meaning of the passive. The omission of the by-phrase is discussed in Chart 10-4.

The text concentrates on the form of the passive and its basic use. The passive expresses the accomplishment of an action when the doer of the action is not known, or it is not important to know this. For example, in the sentence Corn is grown in Iowa, who grew the corn is not important or is not known. The passive forms a legitimate and necessary function in English rhetoric, especially in scientific and technical writing. For example in the sentence, Energy can be changed from one form to another, but it cannot be destroyed, the passive describes a situation in which there simply is no particular actor or doer of the action, nor any need to identify an actor. In such situations, the passive is a common and useful structure.

Languages differ on passiveness. English is rather flexible in attributing actions and volition to inanimate objects. For example, it accepts as grammatical, My shoe fell off. Other languages insist that sentences must always be in a passive form; a shoe could never will or cause itself to fall off. Students from such language backgrounds may attempt to "stretch" the grammar of English to conform to the "logic" of their grammars.

- Ask students to take turns reading sentence (a) and sentence (b) aloud.
- With help from the class, create a new pair of sentences that illustrate the subject's role in an active sentence vs. the subject's role in a passive one. Try to draw the first example from class dynamics, for example:

S V O

Nikita took Mito's grammar book.

- Label the parts of the sentence by asking:

What's the action?

Who's doing it?

What's being acted on?

- Write the label ACTIVE above this sentence.

ACTIVE

S V O

Nikita took Mito's grammar book.

- Explain that in English there's another way to write this same sentence. Write it on the board.

Mito's grammar book was taken by Nikita.
