

Chapter 11 Chemical Reactions

Test Answer Key

The chemical reactions that occur inside the human body are extremely complex. One of the main reactions that occurs is the metabolism of glucose, and another reaction is the detoxification of the liver. The metabolism of glucose is one of the main factors that affect the levels of insulin that are generated by the liver. The metabolism of glucose is also related to a person's risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

The human body produces a lot of glucose. This excess glucose is quickly transported to the cells in the body by the blood stream and is rapidly processed into glucose. When the body is in an energy deficit, the body will try to use any glucose it can find. The liver then converts the glucose into the ketone body acetoacetate which then has a very powerful detoxifying effect on the body. In addition to the normal process of conversion, the liver also produces other substances such as urea, bile salts, and purine.

 reviews the essential aspects of pyroxene research Recently Deer Howie and Zussman DHZ published a second edition of their volume in the Rock Forming Minerals series Single Chain Silicates Vol 2A John Wiley New York 1978 The present volume is intended to be complementary to DHZ and to provide material covered lightly or not at all in DHZ such as electron microscopy spectroscopy and detailed thermodynamic treatments However because the range of pyroxene research has grown so much in recent years there still are important areas not covered comprehensively in either of these volumes Some of these areas are kinetics diffusion crystal defects deformation and nonsilicate pyroxene crystal chemistry Because of these omissions and because this volume is intended for use with the MSA Short Course on Pyroxenes to be held at Emory University in conjunction with the November 1980 meeting of the Society a Symposium on Pyroxenes was organized by J Stephen Huebner for the meeting that is designed to present the latest research results on several different topics including those above With DHZ this volume and publications from the Symposium the student of pyroxenes should be well equipped to advance our knowledge of pyroxenes in the decades ahead General College Chemistry Charles William Keenan,Donald retains the pedagogical strengths that made the previous editions so popular and has been updated reorganized and streamlined Changes include more accessible introductory chapters with greater stress on the logic of the periodic table earlier introduction of redox reactions greater emphasis on the concept of energy a new section on Lewis structures earlier introduction of the ideal gas law and a new development of thermodynamics Each chapter ends with review questions and problems
