Index Medicus ,2003 Vols for 1963 include as pt 2 of the Jan issue Medical subject headings Cumulated Index Medicus ,1978 A Community Health Worker Model to Address Childhood Asthma Lillian Jin,Ivan Marquez,Ray López,Lindsey Realmuto,Anne Bozack,Matthew Perzanowski,Linda Weiss,2017 In 1997 Little Sisters of the Assumption Family Health Service Little Sisters established the Environmental Health Services program in response to high rates of asthma among East Harlem children The program provides a continuum of services meant to mitigate the negative effects of poor living conditions on asthma related health outcomes Led by a team of community health workers CHWs program activities include assessments of the home environment hands on training and education on safe and effective ways to address unhealthy living conditions and advocacy services for tenants to get necessary repairs form housing management In 2011 with funding from the U S Department of Housing and Urban Development HUD Little Sisters began implementation of Controlling Asthma through Home Remediation CAHR a demonstration of their program model specifically targeting families living in public housing The demonstration included an evaluation of the program by The New York Academy of Medicine the Academy findings included statistically significant reductions in nighttime awakenings emergency department visits and use of rescue medications As part of the evaluation a sample of 17 caregivers participated in interviews with questions that focused on their perception of program quality impact and lessons learned As described in this report caregivers noted that CHWs helped them to develop knowledge and skills to reduce household asthma triggers in addition CHWs and Little Sisters proved to be influential advocates facilitating the settlement of complaints with housing management As New York State and local health care systems adopt and promote more community based health problems CAHR represents a promising example of an intervention that can produce improvements in asthma related health outcomes while supporting grassroots efforts to create changes in policies and practice Evaluation of a Community-based Asthma Education Program for Hispanic Children Asha Abdool,Yasamin Brown,Lindsay McOmber,Julia E. Mitchell,2001 The Impact of Aesculapian Authority at Point of Intervention on a Community-based Asthma Program Brian D. Callahan,2005 Community-Based Asthma Intervention Programs and Their Impact on Childhood Health Outcomes and Burdens on the Healthcare System Danika Ng,2017 Since 1997 asthma prevalence rates have increased by 3% annually leading to a current rate of 18.4 million adults and 6.2 million children with asthma high hospitalization and emergency department visit rates and an overall healthcare spending of 50 billion dollars However this increase in prevalence is disproportionately impacting children Asthma is the third leading cause for hospitalization in children have higher proportions of children being hospitalized with asthma symptoms and have higher rates of asthma attacks Recent literature shows that perceived lack of adequate education in areas such as medication adherence medical device usage asthma trigger avoidance lack of accessible education resources and overall education on understanding asthma symptoms are leading to this high disproportion of children adversely affected by asthma Community based education interventions provide essential and accessible education to children adversely impacted by their asthma symptoms The Asthma Educators Institute AEI is one program that may improve childhood asthma health outcomes while reducing burdens on the healthcare system Teaming up with American Lung Association's Greater Bay Area branch this year's AEI focused on educating the healthcare provider to teach their patients patient's families and community members on the best ways to manage their asthma at home and provide essential asthma education in the hopes of improving these outcomes Working together so everyone can breathe better, 2003

Morton, Mary E. Vaiana, Barbara Genovese, 2002-05-07 One liner A set of policy recommendations to promote the development and maintenance of communities in which children with asthma can be swiftly diagnosed effectively treated and protected from exposure to harmful environmental factors An estimated 5 million U S children have asthma Too many of these children are unnecessarily impaired Much of the money spent on asthma is for high cost health care services to treat acute periods of illness Many asthma attacks could be avoided and much suffering prevented and many medical costs saved if more children received good quality ongoing asthma care and if the 11 policy recommendations presented in this report were implemented in a coordinated fashion A national call to action the policy recommendations span public and private interests and compel integration of public health activities across local state and federal levels This report summarizes the findings of an effort funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation as part of the Pediatric Asthma Initiative whose purpose is to address current gaps in national childhood asthma care It is the first national initiative that simultaneously addresses treatment policy and financing issues for children with asthma at the patient provider and institutional levels The purpose of RAND's effort was to identify a range of policy actions in both the public and private sectors that could improve childhood asthma outcomes nationwide select a subset of policies to create a blueprint for national policy in this area outline alternatives to implement these policies that build on prior efforts The effort developed a comprehensive policy framework that maps the identified strategies to one overall policy objective to promote the development and maintenance of asthma friendly communities communities in which children with asthma are swiftly diagnosed receive appropriate and ongoing treatment and are not exposed to environmental factors that exacerbate their condition This report is intended as a working guide for coordinating the activities of both public and private organizations at the federal state and local community levels A Fifth Vital Sign for a Pediatric Asthma Program Elizabeth W.
