

The background of the slide is a photograph of a weathered stone wall. The wall is composed of large, irregular blocks of light-colored stone, possibly limestone or sandstone, which are heavily eroded and pitted. Between these stone blocks are thick, horizontal layers of reddish-brown mortar or a different type of stone. To the left of the wall, a glimpse of a coastal landscape is visible, showing a dark, rocky shore and a body of water under a pale sky. The overall tone of the image is aged and historical.
