multischool multiprogram study they compare the effects of commercial phonics based programs and noncommercial literature based programs on students fluency and overall proficiency The results will surprise you Faster more accurate readers aren't always better comprehenders Decoding rates are highly variable among readers with similar comprehension levels Commercial phonics based programs do not result in better decoding faster and more accurate reading or better comprehension Performance on fluency assessments says little if anything about students ability to read and understand literature Altwerger Jordan and Shelton don't just dismantle the arguments for considering fluency a key component of reading they come through with specific critiques of DIBELS and offer better ways to assess reading effective and efficient not just fluent that can improve instruction assessment and the success of young readers Whether your school is about to mandate a commercial reading program or a standardized fluency assessment or it is trying to get out from under one make Rereading Fluency and make your powerful research based ally in the battle for improved assessment and instruction
