Congolese soldiers find their loneliness reflected in the lyrics of rumba songs. Survivors of the siege of Sarajevo discuss which book they would have never burned for fuel. A Romanian political prisoner writes her memoir in her head, a book no one will ever read. These are the arts of survival in times of crisis. Rumba Under Fire proposes we think differently about what it means for the arts and liberal arts to be in crisis. In prose and poetry the contributors to Rumba Under Fire explore what it means to do art in hard times. How do people teach, create, study and rehearse in situations of political crisis? Can art and intellectual work really function as resistance to power? What relationship do scholars, journalists or even memoirists have to the crises they describe and explain? How do works created in crisis, especially at the extremes of human endurance, fit into our theories of knowledge and creativity? The contributors are literary scholars, anthropologists and poets covering a broad geographic range from Turkey to the United States, from Bosnia to the Congo. Rumba Under Fire includes essays, poetry and interviews by Tim Albrecht, Carla Baricz, Greg Brownderville, William Coker, Andrew Crabtree, Cara De Silva, Irina Dumitrescu, Denis Ferhatovic, Susannah Hollister, Prashant Keshavmurthy, Sharon Portnoff, Anand Taneja and Judith Verweijen. Virginia Journal of Education, 2000. Discover Science: Teacher's annotated edition, 1991. book Ruf tries to understand how the concepts of voice and genre function in texts especially religious texts To this end he joins literary theorists in the discussion about narrative Ruf rejects the idea of genre as a fixed historical form that serves as a template for readers and writers instead he suggests that we imagine different genres whether narrative lyric or dramatic as the expression of different voices Each voice he asserts possesses different key qualities embodiment sociality contextuality and opacity in the dramatic voice intimacy limitation urgency in lyric and a magisterial quality of comprehensiveness and cohesiveness in narrative These voices are models for our selves composing an unruly and unstable multiplicity of selves Ruf applies his theory of voice and genre to five texts Dineson s Out of Africa Donne s Holy Sonnets Primo Levi s The Periodic Table Robert Wilson s Einstein on the Beach and Coleridge s Biographia Literaria Through these literary works he discerns the detailed ways in which a text constructs a voice and in the process a self More importantly Ruf demonstrates that this process is a religious one fulfilling the function that religions traditionally assume that of defining the self and its world
