

Which Car Brands Make the Best Vehicles?

We ranked 34 brands based on the Overall Scores of their models, which include road tests, reliability, satisfaction, and safety

February 27, 2014
By Jeff S. Bartlett
Data analysis by Anna Lam

Our annual ratings of 101 automakers can save you a lot of time when shopping for a car purchase. These ratings are based on the average (overall) scores, a combination of our road test scores, predicted reliability and owner satisfaction data, and safety for all of the models from each automaker.

The top five brands this year are the same ones as 2013, with BMW leading the pack, with an 82-point score, followed by Subaru, the leading mainstream brand, at 78. The key for both companies is their consistent contribution of high road test scores and very good predicted reliability. Subaru takes the third position with a score of 76, thanks to the reliability and safety scores of its models. Toyota and Honda round up the positions this year due to their improved reliability.

Keep in mind that most high-scoring brands are from more than one performance category, so be sure to check the ratings on page 56 for the same points mentioned. This is especially true for Nissan, which has two models that performed better than others in our tests.

If the 34 brands CR ranked this year, we're recommending every model tested from across BMW, Porsche, Honda, Acura, Mazda, and Volvo. Simply put, "the car they say is best" model from these companies with no drawbacks. (There are other brands that don't have a single model recommended by CR, including Dodge, Chevrolet, and Ram, but we're recommending them for their safety, reliability, and owner satisfaction scores.)

To be included in the brand ranking, CR has to have tested at least two current models from a company. We've moved only one model from Land, Renault, and Ram, so they aren't included this year.

How We Rank the Car Brands

- The overall score for individual models is based on four key factors: the road test, reliability, owner satisfaction, and safety.
- For the road test scores, we put vehicles through more than 50 tests.
- Predicted reliability ratings are based on problems reported by owners from all possible models from a brand's current sales lineup.
- Owner satisfaction predictions are based on whether CR members said it was not what they'd expect the same vehicle again if given the choice.
- Safety is based on a combination of any available crash-test results and extra points assigned to vehicles that come standard with key crash-protection features.
- Green Choice refers to how many of a brand's CR-rated vehicles earned the designation for being in the top 20 percent of vehicles with the lowest emissions, according to the EPA.
