Geometrical Geodesy Maarten Hooijberg, 2007-12-18 Surveying a Century Ago As it was based on the principles of geometry and trigonometry surveying may be may be looked upon as a branch of practical mathematics Hence it was necessary that land surveyors and hydrographers should have a fair general knowledge not only of these subjects but also of all the subjects comprised by the term mathematics In addition the knowledge of mathematics required in ordinary chain surveying and levelling was not very extensive but in geodetical work the highest mathematical ability and great organising power were required for a proper conception and supervision of the operations Threlfall 1940 Only small area of a few hundred square kilometres can be accurately mapped and surveyed without a frame work since no difficulty is encountered because of Earth curvature In the past especially in hydrography due to the type of work surveying was carried out on the principles of ordinary practice but in a very rough manner rapidity of execution being of paramount importance the permissible error was sometimes large The relative positions of the main surface features were obtained by aid of portable instruments such as sextants and lead lines tide poles and logships Sketching just like military surveying was often filling in the smaller detail In contrary survey works done by the national mapping agencies NMAs were of a higher level and comprised the delimitation of boundaries as well as topographical surveys PC World ,1998 University of California Union Catalog of Monographs Cataloged by the Nine Campuses from 1963 Through 1967: Authors & titles University of California (System).
