Understanding Digital Technologies and Young Children Susanne Garvis, Narelle Lemon, 2015-09-08 Understanding Digital Technologies and Young Children explores the possibilities digital technology brings to enhance the learning and developmental needs of young children. Globally, the role of technology is an increasingly important part of everyday life. In many early childhood education frameworks and curricula around the world, there is an expectation that children are developing skills to become effective communicators and are using digital technology to investigate their ideas and represent their thinking. This means that educators throughout the world are expected to actively enhance children's learning in ways that provide learning experiences with technology that are balanced and purposeful to allow the transformation of traditional authentic learning experiences. Digital technologies can be used to explore, manipulate, discover, play and interact with real and imaginative worlds to allow active meaning making. With a wide range of expert contributors, this book provides a comprehensive examination of the current research on technology and young children and the importance of engagement for learning. This approach encourages the reader to rethink the possibilities and potential of digital technologies for learning in the early years, especially in the years before formal schooling when children might be attending early childhood settings. This will be a valuable reference for anyone looking for an international perspective on digital technology and young children and is particularly aimed at current and future teachers.

Parental Engagement and Early Childhood Education Around the World Susanne Garvis, Sivan Phillipson, Heidi Harju-Luukkainen, Alicja Renata Sadownik, 2021-12-23 Exploring the importance of parental engagement in early childhood education, this book delves into research and practices in 25 countries to bring students, researchers, teachers and policy makers insights into working families around the world. The incorporation and consideration of parental engagement and involvement in early childhood education are a new phenomenon in many countries. Yet increasing research recognises the importance of parental engagement and involvement in early childhood education services and the role both parents and teachers play to support children's learning and development. Using a range of materials from curriculum to policy documents, Garvis et al demonstrate differences in practices and terminologies pertaining to the topic and provide an international perspective on the importance of parental involvement and engagement in early childhood education services. The content covers a range of countries as well as countries beyond an Anglo-Saxon perspective. The different policy settings across these countries highlight how countries work with and involve parents differently, which is useful for jurisdictions where early childhood education is a developing aspect of a country's education.
