into high gear and prison populations soared the increase in women's rate of incarceration has steadily outpaced that of men In Breaking Women Jill A McCorkel draws upon four years of on the ground research in a major US women's prison to uncover why tougher drug policies have so greatly affected those incarcerated there and how the very nature of punishment in women's detention centers has been deeply altered as a result. Through compelling interviews with prisoners and state personnel, McCorkel reveals that popular so-called habilitation drug treatment programs force women to accept a view of themselves as inherently damaged aberrant addicts in order to secure an earlier release. These programs work to enforce stereotypes of deviancy that ultimately humiliate and degrade the women. The prisoners are left feeling lost and alienated in the end, and many never truly address their addiction as the programs' organizers may have hoped. A fascinating and yet sobering study, Breaking Women foregrounds the gendered and racialized assumptions behind tough on crime policies while offering a vivid account of how the contemporary penal system impacts individual lives. Jill A. McCorkel is Associate Professor of Sociology at Villanova University.

Violence Alex Alvarez, Ronet Bachman, 2016-11-01. The Third Edition of Violence: The Enduring Problem offers an interdisciplinary and reader-friendly exploration of the patterns and correlations of individual and collective violent acts using the most contemporary research theories and cases. Responding to the fear of pervasive violence in the world, authors Alex Alvarez and Ronet Bachman address the various legislative, social, and political efforts to curb violent behavior. They expertly incorporate a wide range of the most current cases to help readers interpret the nature and dynamics of a variety of different yet connected forms of violence. While most texts of this type simply cover individual acts of violence, this book offers readers a broader perspective covering more collective violence activities such as terrorism, mob violence, and genocide.

Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice, 1987.

Criminal Justice James P. Levine, Michael C. Musheno, Dennis J. Palumbo, 1980. Concentrating on the conflicts of interest among criminal justice system components, between the public and its perception of crime, and among policymakers, this analysis promotes new public policy directions. First, an analysis of crime, criminals, and the criminal justice system provides a perspective to help distinguish myths about ideal system operation from the reality of its functioning. This conceptual framework focuses on the conflicting priorities of private motives and public interests, perceptions, and misconceptions of crime theories about what constitutes a criminal and the implementation of criminal justice policy from these perceptions. The workings of each of the major components of the criminal justice system are then examined with attention to the real roles and interests of the police, lawyers, attorneys, and the defense counsel, the courts, and corrections. Interests and goals that are prime points of conflict between these components are detailed, as is the impact of these conflicts on law enforcement and crime. Third, four policies currently being used in the U.S. to deal with crime are explored: deterrence, rehabilitation, decriminalization, and diversion. Attempts are made to fit each policy into its historical beginning and to highlight reasons for its emerging as an important policy. Each policy's assumptions about the nature of crime and the nature of criminals are discussed Finally processes for assessing policies and their impact on society and crime are presented the processes are evaluated for advantages and pitfalls Evaluations of research designed to assess policies then lead to proposals for improving criminal justice policy

Evaluating Juvenile Justice James R. Kluegel, 1983-10 Rapid political shifts have alternatively favoured liberal approaches aimed at diverting some juvenile delinquents from the criminal justice system and conservative more punitive approaches to dealing with juveniles The authors look at a range of programmes that reflect these political changes and examine how they have worked in practice
