Instructions

1. Pair off group members, and assign them to sit back-to-back.
2. Give one member (the "listener"), a piece of paper with a pencil, and the other member (the "speaker") a geometrical shape from pages 1 - 4.
3. Ask the speaker to describe the geometrical shape to their partner. The listener will attempt to recreate the shape on their blank piece of paper, based upon the instructions. Neither member can see the other's paper, and the listener may ask questions until they receive their 3 - 10 minutes for the portion of the exercise.

Discussion Questions

Speaker

What steps did you take to make sure your instructions would be clear? How can these steps be translated to verbal communication?

What was it like not having feedback from the listener during the exercise?

What do you think you did well at, and how do you think you did poorly? What can you do while speaking to reduce the risk of miscommunication or end the communication?

Listener

What did you do about the speaker's instructions?

Did you find that any of the speaker's instructions were ambiguous or difficult to follow?

How do you think your results would've been different if you had been able to communicate with the speaker?

Communication is a crucial skill for being a good listener or being a good speaker. What steps can you take while listening to reduce miscommunication in verbal situations?
