and the Middle East Keywords in Writing Studies Paul Heilker, Peter Vandenberg, 2015-02-15 Keywords in Writing Studies is an exploration of the principal ideas and ideals of an emerging academic field as they are constituted by its specialized vocabulary. A sequel to the 1996 work Keywords in Composition Studies, this new volume traces the evolution of the field's lexicon, taking into account the wide variety of theoretical, educational, professional, and institutional developments that have redefined it over the past two decades. Contributors address the development, transformation, and interconnections among thirty-six of the most critical terms that make up writing studies. Looking beyond basic definitions or explanations, they explore the multiple layers of meaning within the terms that writing scholars currently use, exchange, and question. Each term featured is a part of the general disciplinary parlance, and each is a highly contested focal point of significant debates about matters of power, identity, and values. Each essay begins with the assumption that its central term is important precisely because its meaning is open and multiplex. Keywords in Writing Studies reveals how the key concepts in the field are used and even challenged, rather than advocating particular usages and the particular vision of the field that they imply. The volume will be of great interest to both graduate students and established scholars.

Decolonizing EFL Writing Education Shizhou Yang, 2025-01-15 Arguably the first book-length exploration of decolonizing English as a Foreign Language (EFL) writing education, this novel volume uses poetic autoethnography to provide a situated, dynamic, and complex view of multilingual writers through their second language (L2) academic writing and creative writing. Responding to contemporary calls to decolonize L2 writing as a field and diversify academic writing for multilingual students, this book is the first of its kind to explore the decolonization of EFL writing education from a Global Southern context. Chapters critically and creatively consider issues of educational technologies, translinguaging, academic writing, epistemology, and pedagogy from two writing courses from a Global South and classroom writing ecology perspective. Using poetic autoethnography alongside data from authentic writing classrooms in Thailand, the book posits that emergent translinguaging literature can be cultivated for decolonization purposes, critiquing and providing decolonial options in such areas as monolingual ideology, freewriting, student identity, and mind. Empowering EFL writing teachers to raise students' critical awareness of issues such as writing culture and coloniality, this book will be of key interest to researchers, scholars, and postgraduate students in the fields of applied linguistics, Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL), L2 writing, multilingual education, and language policy and planning.

Decolonisation, Globalisation Angel Lin, Peter W. Martin, 2005 This volume brings together scholars from around the world to juxtapose the voices of classroom participants alongside the voices of ruling elites, with the aim of critically linking language policy issues with classroom practice in a range of contexts. The volume is suitable for postgraduate students, researchers, and educators in a range of areas.

Teacher Written Commentary in Second Language Writing Classrooms Lynn M. Goldstein, 2005 Although second language writing instructors know that providing effective written feedback is essential to any good composition course, beginning and seasoned teachers alike struggle with this challenging task InTeacher Written Commentary in Second Language WritingClassrooms Lynn M Goldstein uses ample research and experiential evidence to explain both how and why teachers should comment on their students writing assignments Among the problems that Goldstein addresses are how to attend to the product without slighting the process how to intervene in process without appropriating product how to facilitate student comprehension and use of teacher feedback while promoting student independence and how to respond efficiently while remaining attentive to individual student needs While it may not necessarily reduce the time spent on commenting the book will enable teachers and teachers in training to provide written commentary that will help their students to become stronger and more independent writers in English This volume is the only source that contains such in depth consideration of the issues and the range of practices within teacher written commentary and the only resource that focuses solely on issues of rhetoric and content in multilingual writing students texts Teachers and teacher educators will appreciate the Goldstein s thorough and well grounded analysis Lynn M Goldstein is Professor TESOL and Applied Linguistics Monterey Institute of International Studies CA

Pluralizing Plagiarism Rebecca Moore Howard, Amy E. Robillard, 2008 The recent cases of Doris Kearns Goodwin and Kaavya Viswanathan demonstrate that plagiarism is a hot button issue It is also pervasive occurring in universities four year colleges community colleges and secondary schools In graduate programs international classrooms and multicultural classrooms In writing centers and writing across the curriculum programs In scholarly publications and the popular media How do we understand a literacy practice that is simultaneously so abhorred and so present in the lives of both beginning and advanced writers students and Pulitzer Prize winners Pluralizing Plagiarism offers multiple answers to this question answers that insist on taking into account the rhetorical situations in which plagiarism occurs While most scholarly publications on plagiarism mirror mass media's attempts to reduce the issue to simple black and white statements the contributors to Pluralizing Plagiarism recognize that it takes place not in universalized realms of good and bad but in specific contexts in which students cultural backgrounds often play a role Teachers concerned about plagiarism can best address the issue in the classroom especially the first year composition classroom as part of writing pedagogy and not just as a matter for punishment and prohibition Pluralizing Plagiarism opens a productive dialogue about what is at stake in plagiarism one that approaches the topic with students rather than for or about them Leading the way toward curricular reform its contributors
