Conceptual Structures: Logical, Linguistic, and Computational Issues Bernhard Ganter, Guy W.

Mineau, 2006-12-30 Computerscientistscreatemodelsofaperceivedreality ThroughAI techniques these models aim at providing the basic support for emulating cognitive behavior such as reasoning and learning which is one of the main goals of the AI research effort. Such computer models are formed through the interaction of various acquisition and inference mechanisms: perception, concept learning, conceptual clustering, hypothesis testing, probabilistic inference, etc. and are represented using different paradigms tightly linked to the processes that use them. Among these paradigms, let us cite biological models, neural nets, genetic programming, logic based models, first order logic, modal logic, rule based systems, virtual reality models, object systems, agent systems, probabilistic models, Bayesian networks, fuzzy logic, linguistic models, conceptual dependency graphs, language based representations, etc. One of the strengths of the Conceptual Graph (CG) theory is its versatility in terms of the representation paradigms under which it falls. It can be viewed and therefore used under different representation paradigms which makes it a popular choice for a wealth of applications. Its full coupling with different cognitive processes lead to the opening of the field toward related research communities such as the Description Logic, Formal Concept Analysis, and Computational Linguistic communities. We now see more and more research results from one community enrich the other, laying the foundations of common philosophical grounds from which a successful synergy can emerge.
