(Pharmacotherapy 2011;31(11):1146–1149)

The American College of Clinical Pharmacy:

1. Believes that board certification contributes to improved patient care.
2. Believes that board certification is a valid assessment of a pharmacist's level of specialized knowledge in a designated area of practice.
3. Believes that board certification is an essential element of clinical privileging.
4. Supports fully the Board of Pharmacy Specialties (BPS) as the organization responsible for identifying and recognizing pharmacy practice specialties, setting standards for the certification and recertification of pharmacist specialists, and objectively evaluating individuals seeking certification and recertification.
5. Supports efforts to enhance and streamline the processes for recognition of pharmacy practice specialties, as well as efforts to increase the number, depth, and breadth of specialties.
6. Affirms its vision that in the future all pharmacists who are responsible (individually or collaboratively) for the pharmacotherapeutic management of patients with complex or special drug therapy needs will be board certified.

7. Supports the collaboration of pharmacists, employers, professional organizations, and legislative and regulatory bodies in the development of continuous quality improvement mechanisms to assess, ensure, and promote the competence of pharmacists. These mechanisms should include board certification; patient, employer, and payer evaluation of the outcomes of care; peer review by colleagues with similar education, training, experience, and responsibilities; and systematic review or evaluation by employers.
8. Supports requiring board certification for pharmacists who:
 - Supervise students and/or residents during direct patient care experiences when they manage the pharmacotherapy of patients with complex or special drug therapy needs.
 - Teach students about therapeutics and drug therapy management.
 - Deliver continuing pharmacy education that focuses on therapeutics and drug therapy management of patients with complex or special drug therapy needs.
9. Supports the public reporting of the number of:
 - Residency program directors and preceptors who are board-certified pharmacist specialists.
 - Residency program graduates who become board certified within 3 years of completing their residency program.
 - Faculty and preceptors—specifically, those responsible for supervising students during advanced pharmacy practice experiences—at each college or school of pharmacy who are board-certified pharmacist specialists.
 - Pharmacists practicing in accredited health care delivery organizations—specifically, those pharmacists responsible for managing the pharmacotherapy of patients with complex or special drug therapy needs—who are board certified specialists.
