Teaching Global History Alan J. Singer, 2012-04-27 Teaching Global History challenges prospective and beginning social studies teachers to formulate their own views about what is important to know in global history and why It explains how to organize the curriculum around broad social studies concepts and themes and student questions about humanity history and the contemporary world All chapters include lesson ideas a sample lesson plan with activity sheets primary source documents and helpful charts graphs photographs and maps High school students responses are woven in throughout Additional material corresponding to each chapter is posted online at http://people.hofstra.edu/alan_j_singer The traditional curriculum tends to highlight the Western heritage and to race through epochs and regions leaving little time for an in depth exploration of concepts and historical themes for the evaluation of primary and secondary sources and for students to draw their own historical conclusions Offering an alternative to such pre packaged textbook outlines and materials this text is a powerful resource for promoting thoughtful reflection and debate about what the global history curriculum should be and how to teach it

World History: Patterns of Interaction McDougal-Littell Publishing Staff, 2004-03 Presenting Counterpoints to the Dominant Terrestrial Narrative of European Prehistory John T. Koch, Mikael Fauvelle, Barry Cunliffe, Johan Ling, 2025-05-31 Challenges the terrestrial focus of European prehistory emphasizing the significance of seascapes maritime networks and coastal societies in shaping prehistoric Europe For many years now the main thrust of European prehistory has followed a fundamentally terrestrial plot line This terrestrial paradigm has undervalued the story of Europe as a peninsula between the Baltic Mediterranean and Atlantic and likewise downplayed that of many navigable rivers that reach deeply inland and the large lakes important for travel and subsistence In vast areas of Europe the survival of incoming groups depended on coping and interacting with a seascape as much as a landscape From the late Mesolithic onwards in regions such as Scandinavia the British Isles and the Mediterranean most occupation was coastal seas or rivers provided the most important infrastructure for transport exchange and communication Know how about seascapes boatbuilding navigation and maritime networks had a profound impact on social organisation ritual monuments and iconography and the spread of materials and ideas enabled by the adaptation of languages to these new environments Given these facts the time is long overdue to critique the dominant terrestrial paradigm of European prehistory This book is the first in the multi author series Maritime Encounters outputs of the major six year 2022-2028 international research initiative funded by Sweden's central bank Our programme is based on a maritime perspective a counterpoint to prevailing land based vantages on Europe's prehistory In the Maritime Encounters project a highly international cross disciplinary team has embarked on a diverse range of research goals to provide a more detailed and nuanced story of how prehistoric societies realised major and minor sea crossings organised long distance exchange and adapted to ways of life by the sea in prehistory
