Education Disadvantage And Place Making The Local Matter:

, Developing Community Schools, Community Learning Centers, Extended-service Schools and Multi-service Schools Hal A. Lawson, Dolf van Veen, 2015-12-14 This book focuses on special organizational configurations for schools in diverse parts of the world. Some of these new organizational and institutional designs are called multi-service schools, others are called extended service schools, and still others are called community learning centers. While these schools have different names and notable different characteristics, they belong in the same category because of a common feature in their design: they connect schools with once separate community programs and services. Chief among the prototypes for these new organizational and institutional designs are the ones featured in the book's title. Some are called multi-service schools to indicate that they selectively provide some new programs and services. Others are called extended service schools to indicate that they serve young people beyond the regular school day, seeking influence and control over out-of-school time while enabling alternative teaching/learning strategies and providing services other than typical pupil support services. Still others are called community learning centers, a name that showcases the educational functions and priorities of schools and announcing priorities for adult learning and development. Community schools, still called in some places full-service community schools, serves as a prototype that increasingly positions schools as multi-purpose, multi-component anchor institutions serving identifiable neighborhoods and entire rural communities. The book is structured to enhance understanding of these organizational prototypes and provides comparative social analysis. It also identifies knowledge needs and gaps as well as developmental territory for the future. The Bloomsbury Handbook of Rural Education in the United States Amy Price Azano, Karen Eppley, Catharine Biddle, 2021-09-09 This handbook begins with a foundational overview of rural education, examining the ways in which definitions, histories, policies, and demographic changes influence rural schools. This foundational approach includes how corporatization, population changes, poverty, and the role of data affect everyday learning in rural schools. In following sections, the contributors consider how school closures, charter schools, and district governance influence decision making in rural schooling, while also examining the influence of these structures on higher education attainment, rural school partnerships, and school leadership. They explore curriculum studies in rural education, including place-based and trauma-informed pedagogies, rural literacies, rural stereotype threat, and achievement. Finally, they engage with issues of identity and equity in rural schools by providing an overview of the literature related to diverse populations in rural places, including Indigenous, Black, and Latinx communities and exceptional learners. Importantly, this handbook applies theoretical tools to rural classroom experiences, demonstrating the potential of work centered at the intersection of theory, rurality, and classroom practice. Each section concludes with a response by an international scholar situating the topics covered within the broader global context. Place-Based Methods for Researching Schools Pat Thomson, Christine Hall, 2016-12-15 Schools are complex institutions. They do not easily reveal themselves to researchers who rely on only one or two methods Understanding a school its neighbourhood and its students requires a researcher with a more complex repertoire of verbal statistical and visual research strategies Place Based Methods for Researching Schools shows how multiple methods can be used together to research schools rather than dealing with decontextualised methods one by one Taking a novel theoretical approach to the school as a place the book offers grounded illustrations of schools as places from real case study and ethnographic research conducted in both Australia and the UK A practical guide this book explores the on the ground questions researchers are likely to face in the order they are likely to face them The chapters not only look at data generation approaches but also address analysis of the data and writing about the school topics that are often ignored Methods explored for use include those drawn from urban planning and geography to explore neighbourhoods visual surveys mapping classroom observation ethnographic observation interviews focus groups sociograms and linguistic corpora Including research tips from the authors case studies a glossary and annotated further reading list this book is essential reading for students and scholars approaching their research project

Poverty in Education Across the UK

Ian Thompson, Gabrielle Ivinson, 2020-09-02 Nuanced interconnections of poverty and educational attainment around the UK are surveyed in this unique analysis Across the four jurisdictions of England Scotland Wales and Northern Ireland experts consider the impact of curriculum reforms and devolved policy making on the lives of children and young people in poverty They investigate differences in educational ideologies and structures and question whether they help or hinder schools seeking to support disadvantaged and marginalised groups For academics and students engaged in education and social justice this is a vital exploration of poverty's profound effects on inequalities in educational attainment and the opportunities to improve school responses
