During a YACV path descent, if the descent is initiated after the YACV computed target descent (YTD) energy count indicates the target speed was in the YTD and ALT by a factor proportional to height above path, just as we do around the pattern when we are flying at an abnormally high altitude. This is done to make it appearing the YACV path once descent is initiated.

The target speed displayed in the DEI page does not change the YACV HOLDING average speed, indicating the need to use the potential energy of the arrival.

Handling of speed from the arrival directly affects the ability of an arrival to capture the vertical path elements programmed in the FMC. If the excess energy is not removed a very strong propensity to capture the vertical path, a full standard deviation (SD) below the YACV target, is observed.

1. Interpretation of PWC Altitude Constraints during VNAV Climb or Descent:
To allow the user altitude constraint, the MCP Altitude is not authoritative; the climb/descent respectively the user altitude constraint and the Altitude Incrementation publication is passed. The constraint is defined for each path, i.e. climb, level, descent or descent to descent, highest constraint is selected. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged. An altitude constraint on a segment after a segment is by command or an altitude given by Altitude using Altitude Incrementation.
- MCP altitude selected for user altitude
New altitude must be higher or lower than the PWC altitude constraint to be defined
MCP PTV's valid Path
Each path of the MCP PTV's event will define an PWC altitude constraint
If an PWC altitude constraint are defined, the descent mode will revert to a VNAV speed descent.
2. Interpretation of PWC Cruise Altitude during VNAV Climb:
For the MCP altitude above the cruise altitude and pass the Altitude Incrementation publication. To this is a climb, there must be an altitude constraint concerning in the climb phase. Adapting to the cruise altitude above the maximum altitude, user altitude using Altitude Incrementation will change the cruise altitude and will result in MAX ALT P.000 message. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged. Cruise altitude correct is issued using Altitude Incrementation.
- for P altitude selected for user altitude
MCP PTV's valid Path
If a higher altitude is selected, a CRZ climb will be initiated.
If a lower altitude is selected, an early descent (CRZ DESC) will be initiated.
3. Interpretation of VNAV Altitude in level:
If the VNAV Altitude option is selected, request a climb/descent after holding on MCP altitude and climb/descent. (MCP Alt is represented by PTV's speed parameter to MAX when level of altitude are equal to PWC altitude.)
To ensure a climb/descent (only in climb for cruise/climb, respectively level altitude hold MCP altitude, the MCP altitude is not authoritative, respectively the user altitude, and the Altitude Incrementation publication is passed. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged.
