

Evaluating an Informational Text

In this activity, you will evaluate an informational text for how an author effectively uses text structures, features, and central ideas to achieve a purpose. You have two options to choose from to complete this activity:

Option 1: You may conduct research to locate uninformational text of your own choosing that provides information about the Renaissance era, or one of the texts or authors you read in this unit. To find a valid informational text on your own, check for the source to make sure it is credible and valid. Before you begin analyzing the text, ask your instructor to approve it.

Option 2: You can evaluate the informational text titled “Sweet Sugar & Time.”

Remember that in your evaluation, you will be evaluating your chosen text:

- text structure
- text features
- central ideas

Part A – Evaluate Text Structure

Now read your selected text. After you read, fill in the table.

- First, identify 1–2 text structures that the author has chosen to use in their informational text.
- Then, explain how this structure helps the author achieve their purpose or develop a central idea.
- Finally, explain one way the author could have made the text more effective.
