Introduction/Questions

- Write the equation for the reaction of sodium and chlorine (chlorine gas) to form sodium chloride.

- Write the equation for the reaction of sodium oxide and carbon dioxide to produce sodium carbonate sodium.

Information: Subscripts and Coefficients

It is important to understand that when you have subscripts in a compound, the number of that subscript tells you the subscript value of that atom. There are never double bond symbols used between two carbon.

A coefficient tells you how many molecules of a compound there are, that is a different way. For example for the equation: " $2H_2O$ " the 2 here is the coefficient. The 2 here tells us that there are three molecules of water present. In this equation " $2H_2O$ " there are a total of 4 hydrogen atoms and 2 oxygen atoms.

Balance Chemical Equations

- Balance oxygen atoms in equation: $2H_2O + 2H_2 \rightarrow 2H_2O + 2H_2$

- Balance oxygen atoms in the reaction: $2H_2O + 2H_2 \rightarrow 2H_2O + 2H_2$

Information: How To Balance Equations

Consider the reaction of sodium and chlorine to produce sodium chloride (halogenation):

Remember that when chlorine is in Cl_2 it is always written as Cl_2 . On the product side of the equation, there must always be a total of two atoms of chlorine. Notice the product side there is only one atom of chlorine. Notice we are missing chlorine. In order to fix this equation to make it correct, we need to balance the equation. This can be done. But, by adding a "2" to the product side:
