Chapter Royal Power Grows:

The Growth of a People Paul Lacombe, 1883 World History Elisabeth Gaynor Ellis, Anthony Esler, 2014

Interpreting Herodotus Thomas Harrison, Elizabeth K. Irwin, 2018 Charles W. Fornara's Herodotus: An Interpretative Essay Oxford 1971 was a landmark publication in the study of the great Greek historian. Well known in particular for its main thesis that the Histories should be read against the background of the Atheno-Peloponnesian Wars during which it was written, its insight and penetrating discussion extend to a range of other issues from the relative unity of Herodotus' work and the relationship between his ethnographies and historical narrative to the themes and motifs that criss-cross the Histories how history became moral and Herodotus didactic. Interpreting Herodotus brings together a team of leading Herodotean scholars to look afresh at the themes of Fornara's seminal Essay in the light of the explosion of scholarship on the Histories in the intervening years, focusing particularly on how we can interpret Herodotus' work in terms of the context in which he wrote. What does it mean to talk of the unity of the Histories or Herodotus' moral purpose? How can we reconstruct the context in which the Histories were written and published? And in what sense might the Histories constitute a warning for his own or for subsequent generations? In developing and interrogating Fornara's influential ideas for a new generation of scholars, the volume also offers a wealth of insights and new perspectives on the Father of History that attests to the vibrancy and diversity of contemporary engagement with Herodotus.

Nordic Elites in Transformation, c. 1050–1250, Volume III Wojtek Jezierski, Kim Esmark, Hans Jacob Orning, Jón Viðar Sigurðsson, 2020-10-06 This book explores the practical and symbolic resources of legitimacy which the elites of medieval Scandinavia employed to establish, justify and reproduce their social and political standing between the end of the Viking Age and the rise of kingdoms in the thirteenth century. Geographically, the chapters cover the Scandinavian realms and Free State Iceland. Thematically, the authors cover a wide palette of cultural practices and historical sources: hagiography, historiography, spaces and palaces, literature and international connections which rulers, magnates or ecclesiastics used to compete for status and to reserve haloing glory for themselves. The volume is divided into three sections. The first looks at the sacral, legal and acclamatory means through which privilege was conferred onto kings and ruling families. Section Two explores the spaces such as aristocratic halls, palaces, churches in which the social elevation of elites took place. Section Three explores the traditional and novel means of domestic distinction and international cultural capital which different orders of elites—knights, powerful clerics, ruling families, etc.—wrought to assure their dominance and set themselves apart vis-à-vis their peers and subjects. A concluding chapter discusses how the use of symbolic capital in the North compared to wider European contexts.

College Entrance and Regents Ancient and Medieval History (with Maps) Lucian Lamm, 1928 The Mongol Archive in Late Medieval France Mark Cruse, 2025-02-15 The Mongol Archive in Late Medieval France is the first comprehensive study of contact between France and the Mongols in the late Middle Ages. As these realms expanded across Eurasia, the French, through crusade and settlement, the Mongols, through conquest, their encounters altered each other's understanding of the world and their place in it. The Mongol influence on French culture is visible in what Mark Cruse calls the Mongol archive: a wide range of materials including chronicles, crusade treatises, encyclopedias, manuscript illuminations, maps, romances, and travel accounts revealing how the French court made sense of a people previously unknown to the European intellectual tradition. Cruse mines this archive of Franco-Mongol contact to reassess France's place in the continental history of medieval Eurasia. By comparing the French and Mongol courts, Cruse shows how their similarities allowed meaningful communication between them and highlights the surprising connections, diplomatic, intellectual, and genealogical, across vast distances. The library of King Charles V (r. 1364-1380), one of the largest in medieval Europe, is a monument to the richness of these encounters, which anticipate the global interconnectedness of the modern world. Ultimately, the innovative approach in The Mongol Archive in Late Medieval France toward French conceptions of and relations with the Mongols demonstrates how a global perspective transforms our understanding of the medieval world.

Power & Civility Norbert Elias, 1982 This is volume 2 of Elias's The Civilizing process. In it, Elias widens his scope to examine the social, economic, and political changes in European society from the time of Charlemagne to the twentieth century and constructs a highly original theory of the formation of the state and the growth of power. His explanation of the social process by which the private power monopoly of kings turned into the public power monopoly of the modern nation state concludes with a stunning synopsis proposing the beginnings of a theory of the process of civilization.
