

BMW Maintenance Schedule

Paul@iBMWForum.com On 2012-1, BMWET@iBMWForum.com

Maintaining your BMW is essential to ensuring that you'll be driving it through 200,000 miles and past 200,000 miles. These days with the advent of BMW's Free Scheduled Maintenance, BMW will replace your brakes, change your oil, and take care of your car until the new vehicle limited warranty expires. But for the change in how BMW handles maintenance, the recommended maintenance schedule the BMW has also changed. BMW's Mike Ross became "Mike" which is defined as 200,000 miles, which is roughly after the warranty expires. There is the advent of BMW's Free Scheduled Maintenance, BMW recommended manual gearbox and differential oil changes every 50,000 miles, annual brake fluid changes, and coolant changes every two years. All these and fluid filters were typically replaced every 50,000 miles on most BMWs during routine inspections. Now I will admit that with new advances in synthetic lubricants, BMWs can now safely go past the 5,000-mile oil change intervals that existed many years ago, but I don't know of any oil that can last 500,000 miles without breaking down and causing wear. It is for that reason that this document exists to help you determine the right schedule to maintain your car as good or better than the day you bought it. You can discuss the reason why BMW adjusted their maintenance recommendations, but one thing is for sure, I won't be following it.

This is an alternative to the BMW recommended maintenance schedule you can get from the dealership. I will also warn you that many of these items are based on the opinion and experience and you will always find others with differing opinions. One of the most highly debated topics is what the best oil is for your BMW. Please take this information and use it to come up with your own schedule that fits your needs. If you feel that it is too tedious, then take it to your needs. I also can't promise that if you follow this that you won't be stranded by the side of the road due to a failure, because sometimes things just break.

I hope you enjoy the information and I consider this a work in progress. If you have any recommendations or further questions, send me an email at Paul@iBMWForum.com and I will try and get back to you. The document is a powerful resource, takes a minute and read what everyone has to say. Happy Motoring! — Paul

Break-In Service for New Cars

The break-in period is a critical time for any new vehicle due to all of the initial wear products that will be produced following manufacturing. BMW originally performed a break-in service at 1,200 miles on all new cars, which included changing the engine oil and filter, transmission oil, and differential oil. Now with the BMW Free Scheduled Maintenance, BMW only performs break-in services on the more expensive hi cars. If you're lucky enough to buy a new BMW, I recommend a full 1,200 mile break-in service and change your engine oil and filter.
