The Boulton Paul Defiant Phil H. Listemann,2017-02-22 Turret equipped fighters became operational with the Royal Air Force during WW2 as the result of the British Government s ongoing concern about German aerial attacks on the United Kingdom during World War One The possibility of enemy bombers and not just German ones once again flying over the country and dropping their deadly load on British soil had troubled them ever since In the 1930s a fighter fitted with a gun turret was considered to be an effective way of attacking bombers and would be a feasible alternative to conventional fighters The result of this concept was the Defiant which was developed to meet this operational requirement After a promising start during the dark days of the Battle of France the Defiant was withdrawn from day operations after having sustained heavy losses during the Battle of Britain the switched to the night fighter role until the spring of 1942 This publication of 80 pages is illustrated with 80 photographs and four colour profiles and included all the confirmed and probable claims made by Defiant crews between 1940 and 1942 All losses of Defiants used as fighters are also listed squadron by squadron Updated March 2018 The Boulton-Paul Defiant Michael J. troubled them ever since In the 1930s a fighter fitted with a gun turret was considered to be an effective way of attacking bombers and would be a feasible alternative to conventional fighters The result of this concept was the Defiant which was developed to meet this operational requirement After a promising start during the dark days of the Battle of France the Defiant was withdrawn from day operations after having sustained heavy losses during the Battle of Britain This first part is dedicated to the Defiant and narrates its development as a day fighter Although the concept proved a failure the blame does not rest solely on that Defiant the easy way taken by some writers in the past as other factors contributed to its failure Over 30 photographs some seen for the first time Boulton Paul P.82 Defiant Alan W. Hall,19?? En kort beskrivelse af udvikling og den operative anvendelse af Boulton Paul Defiant efterfulgt af illustrationer og billeder af flyets bemaling og afmrkning i relation til de eskadriller som flyet indgik i Boulton Paul Defiant Robert C. Jones,1968 England's Lost Transport Heritage from the Air Allan Brodie,2025-03-21 Britain was the first country in the world to industrialise and alongside new means of production came novel forms of transport including steam trains and steamships in the 19th century and jet aircraft and hovercrafts in the middle of the 20th century Aerofilms flying across the country from 1919 onwards recorded the country's complex infrastructure of road rail and maritime transport that was in place between the wars and the company was evolving alongside and was part of the new aviation industry that was being created While flying across the country Aerofilms remarkable photographers also recorded how Britain communicated with its imperial territories The collection includes images of the country's vast merchant fleet of liners and cargo vessels as well as the flying boats that formed an international network before jets came to dominate the sky Aerofilms were there to record the first flight of the ill fated airship R101 Much of this interesting transport history that the company's photographers witnessed has now disappeared or has been relegated to being museum exhibits This book uses Aerofilms photographs to tell the story of England's lost transport heritage from Roman roads to supersonic Concorde Defiant Robert Verkaik,2020 In this startling new perspective on the Battle of Britain Robert Verkaik reveals the surprising truth about the battle's forgotten fighter the Boulton Paul Defiant The crucial role played by the Spitfire and the Hurricane has been exhaustively recorded but to date next to nothing has been written about the third British fighter which took part in the battle By writing from the unique perspective of the pilots who flew the Defiant and their air gunners Verkaik helps to set the record straight The Air Staff regarded the Defiant as a state of the art bomber destroyer and wanted to equip a third of all Fighter Command squadrons with this new plane But the head of Fighter Command Hugh Dowding had other ideas and went to war with Whitehall over its plan to saddle him with hundreds of obsolete turret fighters Then at Dunkirk a Defiant squadron scored a huge success against the Luftwaffe by shooting down more German planes in one day than any other RAF unit before or since Fighter Command enthusiastically urged on by the Air Ministry now committed its third fighter to the coming air battle over southern England In the desperate dogfights of the battle Defiants shot down both German bombers and fighters but suffered heavy losses too one squadron was almost wiped out when it was ambushed by a superior force of Messerschmitt 109s On 30 August 1940 all Defiant squadrons were withdrawn from the front line The families of the Defiant air crews believed that their husbands brothers and sons had died in vain but the truth is that their vital contribution to the battle over Dunkirk and their role in the Battle of Britain has been all but erased from the official history The story of the Defiant has not been allowed to mar the glorious victory won by the Spitfire and the Hurricane But Verkaik has uncovered new records including top secret memos written by Hugh Dowding and his deputy Keith Park as well as correspondence with the Air Staff combat and squadron reports pilot logs and recordings of the last interviews with Defiant crews He has also succeeded in tracing relatives of Defiant pilots and gunners to tell the story of the Battle of Britain as it has never been told before He reveals how the myths which have grown up around the Defiant mask some inconvenient truths Library of Congress Subject Headings Library of Congress,2011 Squadron Histories: R.F.C., R.N.A.S. and R.A.F., Since 1912 Peter Lewis,1968 Beretter om alle eskadriller i Royal Flying Corps Royal Naval Air Service og Royal Air Force The History of Combat Airplanes Charles Grey Grey,1942 Camouflage & Markings James Goulding, The World's Greatest Aircraft Christopher Chant,1991 Jane's All the World's Aircraft ,1945
