

Chapter 24

Magnetism

I. Magnetic Fields

- Magnetic fields are produced by electric charges in motion, i.e. by electric currents.
- Magnetic fields exert forces on other moving electric charges (or currents) as long as the moving charges do not travel in the same (or opposite) direction as the magnetic field that is exerting the force.
- Magnetic fields do not speed up or slow down moving charges, instead, the magnetic field deflects the moving charges.
- The unit of magnetic field in the metric system is the Tesla.

2. Magnets

- A simple bar magnet (or horseshoe magnet) has a single “North” pole and a single “South” pole.
- In a magnet, like poles repel each other and opposite poles attract.
