Primary Care Procedures in Women's Health Cathryn B. Heath, Sandra M. Sulik, 2010-06-03 Despite the common perception that medicine is becoming specialty driven there are many reasons for primary care providers to offer women's health procedures in an office setting Women feel more comfortable having procedures done by providers whom they already know and trust Continuity of care is still valued by patients who trust their primary care providers to work with them as collaborators in the decision making process Women have found that their options for care have become limited not by their own decision but by the lack of training of their provider In rural areas the barriers of time expense and travel often prevent many women from obtaining necessary care yet many of the procedures that these women are requesting are relatively easy to learn Positive experiences are shared by women who then refer friends and family by word of mouth This book has been designed to assist not only the clinician performing the procedures covered but also the office staff with setting up the equipment tray prior to performing the procedure and with preparing office documents and coding information needed to complete the procedure Most procedures covered can be done with a minimum investment in equipment and require minimal training

The Cost-effectiveness of Introducing Manual Vacuum Aspiration Compared to Dilatation and Curettage for Incomplete First Trimester Abortions at a Tertiary Hospital in Manzini, Swaziland Costa Maonei,2014 Background Despite proven efficacy Manual Vacuum Aspiration MVA use for incomplete abortions is low in the Swaziland setting including Raleigh Fitkin Memorial RFM Hospital Uncertainty in the costs implications of introducing MVA to replace Dilatation and Curettage D C is the major hindrance to change This study aimed to evaluate the cost effectiveness of introducing MVA as an evacuation method for first trimester incomplete miscarriages as well as assess the implications of the introduction of MVA to the entire post abortion care budget at RFM Hospital Methods The methods comprised cost effectiveness and budget impact analyses from a healthcare perspective based on a theoretical cohort Clinical outcomes data for procedures were obtained from relevant literature Costs were collated from prospective suppliers and then compared for the two treatment modalities Future numbers of annual evacuations were extrapolated from previous annual figures First trimester miscarriages were in turn extrapolated from proportions found in previous studies Total budgets were calculated under the current scenario as well as if MVA had to be introduced Results With initial capital costs of ZAR11 093 00 introduction of MVA for first trimester incomplete abortions will cut post abortion care costs by 34.7% MVA would cost ZAR819.86 per procedure while D C costs ZAR1 255.40 per procedure An estimated 26 MVA procedures done instead of D C will compensate for the initial capital investment Introduction of MVA into the post abortion care programme will save the hospital about ZAR516 115.30 annually with at least similar clinical outcomes compared to D C Conclusions MVA should be considered as the first option in first trimester post abortion care
