

Bosch Motronic Basic, Motronic 1.1, Motronic 1.2, and Motronic 1.3 Fuel Injection Tech Article

The technical/repair portion of this article is essentially finished. I will still add to it and update it from time to time.

Introduction:

This article is intended to help owners of cars with Bosch Motronic Fuel injection perform their own service. The article is based on the Original Bosch Motronic system used on the 1987 E28 BMW 535i.

While this article is primarily intended as a fuel injection article, it will include testing information for some components of the ignition and other systems related to the Motronic system. This is because the Motronic system ties into a lot of things, ignition, emission, even the 535i's automatic cabin temperature control. Everything it ties into will be covered.

You will not need any Bosch or BMW testing equipment, this article should allow you to test and troubleshoot with just basic tools and an inexpensive multi meter.

Disclaimer: I have no factory training. Use this information at your own risk. I strongly suggest having a fire extinguisher nearby whenever working on an automotive fuel system. As a matter of fact, just stop reading this right now and go buy a factory BMW shop manual.

How to use this article:

You can use this article in a few ways, first you could follow it through step by step. This would very thoroughly check out your fuel injection and ignitions systems. I recommend this method if you have plenty of time, if your car has more than one problem, or if you just purchased the car and want to get it running just right. If your car has one simple problem you can use this article as a sort of trouble shooting and testing guide for specific components. To make trouble shooting easier I have included the symptoms associated with a defect for each part of the injection system.

The sections showing these symptoms can be found quickly by looking for the ★ Symbol. As a general rule the components that can cause the most problems and/or the biggest problems are towards the beginning of this article. For example, air leaks in the vacuum hoses, lack of power to the fuel injection system, fuel pressure and fuel injectors can all cause a variety of problems, and even prevent the car from running. A faulty idle air control valve will only cause problems at idle so it's covered later in the article.

What cars does this article cover?

The article specifically covers the E28 535i. It also covers most of the changes associated with the S38 engine in the E28 BMW M5, the E34 BMW M5 and the BMW E24 M6.

Can this article help me with other cars?

YES! The short version is this. If your car has Bosch Motronic AND has a distributor, it's version that's covered in this article.

With a few minor variations the same Motronic system is used on many other BMWs from the 1980's including the BMW 533i, 633i, 733i, 635i, 735i, 528e (Note: some early 533, 633, 733 BMWs use Bosch L-Getronics. Please refer to my L-Getronics tech articles for those
