teaching and learning A standard generic report card provides general information regarding student progress assessment and learning SBRCs provide more insight to skills learned or not yet mastered A letter grade does not provide the necessary feedback to enhance student learning as they are only an accumulation of points earned and do not communicate the skills learned or mastered The implementation of SBRCs will further the educational process for all students with clear indicators with the use of rubrics SBRCs provides clear communication to parents or guardians regarding their child s progress SBRCs pinpoint areas of success as well as areas in need of improvement Also they provide meaning to the grades earned by driving instruction to better student engagement while also targeting more rigorous and consistent learning Another advantage of SBRCs is the use of meaningful feedback Teachers can use SBRC indicators and rubrics to provide parents and students with meaningful and purposeful feedback that will help and encourage students to attain mastery on standards being taught
