Cur Deus Homo? Saint Anselm (Archbishop of Canterbury),1880 Cur Deus Homo? Saint Anselm (Archbishop of Canterbury),1886 Cur Deus Homo Anselm,2016-08-06 The masterwork of St Anselm Cur Deus Homo asks the essential question of theology Why was God a Man Written by Anselm in the midst of his spiritual life and contemplation Anselm attempts to answer this question with a reasoned discussion of the Christian canon God s incarnation in the form of Jesus Christ is investigated with the Biblical sources examined and discussed at length The mission of Christ as a manifest teacher without sin and his birth in an ordinary village in Palestine is closely detailed by the studied Anselm Saint Anselm eventually arrives at the conclusion that while man is an imperfect and sinful being without the ability to fully devote himself to God God himself possesses the essential power and ability to place himself among and die for mankind in a bid for humanity to live for Him It is thus that Anselm arrives at the satisfaction theory of atonement satisfaction in the sense meaning restitution rather than gratification whereby Christ s death for human sin is a just act of Godly wrath against man s sinfulness Adopted from a translation to English by Sidney Norton Deane first published in 1903 this edition of Cur Deus Homo is well presented and highly readable for the modern Christian and general readers Cur Deus Homo Anselm,2020-12-31 Cur Deus Homo Why God was a Man was written from 1095 to 1098 once Anselm was already archbishop of Canterbury and discusses the Incarnation It takes the form of a dialogue between Anselm and Boso one of his students Its core is a purely rational argument for the necessity of the Christian mystery of atonement the belief that Jesus s crucifixion was necessary to atone for mankind s sin Cur Deus Homo? Why God Became Man? Saint Anselm (Archbishop of Canterbury),1887 Cur Deus Homo , Cur Deus Homo? Anselm av Canterbury (helgon),192? Why God Became Man Anselm of Canterbury,2020-10 Written by Anselm in the midst of his spiritual life and contemplation Anselm attempts to answer this question with a reasoned discussion of the Christian canon God s incarnation in the form of Jesus Christ is investigated with the Biblical sources examined and discussed at length The mission of Christ as a manifest teacher without sin and his birth in an ordinary village in Palestine is closely detailed by the studied Anselm Saint Anselm eventually arrives at the conclusion that while man is an imperfect and sinful being without the ability to fully devote himself to God God himself possesses the essential power and ability to place himself among and die for mankind in a bid for humanity to live for Him It is thus that Anselm arrives at the satisfaction theory of atonement satisfaction in the sense meaning restitution rather than gratification whereby Christ s death for human sin is a just act of Godly wrath against man s sinfulness Adopted from a translation to English by Sidney Norton Deane first published in 1903 this edition of Cur Deus Homo is well presented and highly readable for the modern Christian and general readers Cur Deus Homo St Anselm,2014-08-07 This Is A New Release Of The Original 1858 Edition Cur Deus Homo (Why God Became Man) St. Anselm St. Anselm of Canterbury,2015-11-20 Anselm of Canterbury was a Benedictine monk and a philosopher who held the office of Archbishop of Canterbury from 1093 to 1109

Called the founder of scholasticism he is famous as the originator of the ontological argument for the existence of God. Anselm was proclaimed a Doctor of the Church in 1720 by Pope Clement XI. Although he believed Anselm constantly struggled to make sense of his religion. He considered the doctrines of faith an invitation to question, to think and to learn, and he devoted his life to confronting and understanding the most elusive aspects of Christianity. Monologium his writings on matters such as free will, the nature of truth and the existence of God established Anselm one of the greatest theologians and philosophers in history. In Why God Became Man, Anselm tries to answer the question of the incarnation of God in the form of Jesus Christ, concluding that neither men nor God owed anything to the Devil and that man's only debt was to God. Anselm was equally radical in his emphasis on human reason, and readers eventually notice that some of his writings were unusual because they don't contain references to the Scriptures.

Cur Deus Homo: Why God Became Man Saint Anselm, 2017-08-16

Excerpt: How man was made holy by God so as to be happy in the enjoyment of God. Anselm: It ought not to be disputed that rational nature was made holy by God in order to be happy in enjoying Him. For to this end is it rational in order to discern justice and injustice, good and evil, and between the greater and the lesser good. Otherwise it was made rational in vain. But God made it not rational in vain. Wherefore doubtless it was made rational for this end. In like manner is it proved that the intelligent creature received the power of discernment for this purpose that he might hate and shun evil and love and choose good and especially the greater good. For else in vain would God have given him that power of discernment since man's discretion would be useless unless he loved and avoided according to it. But it does not befit God to give such power in vain. It is therefore established that rational nature was created for this end, viz. to love and choose the highest good supremely for its own sake and nothing else, for if the highest good were chosen for any other reason, then something else and not itself would be the thing loved. But intelligent nature cannot fulfil this purpose without being holy. Therefore that it might not in vain be made rational, it was made in order to fulfil this purpose, both rational and holy. Now if it was made holy in order to choose and love the highest good, then it was made such in order to follow sometimes what it loved and chose or else it was not. But if it were not made holy for this end, that it might follow what it loves and chooses, then in vain was it made to love and choose holiness, and there can be no reason why it should be ever bound to follow holiness. Therefore as long as it will be holy in loving and choosing the supreme good for which it was made, it will be miserable because it will be impotent despite of its will inasmuch as it does not have what it desires. But this is utterly absurd. Wherefore rational nature was made holy in order to be happy in enjoying the supreme good, which is God. Therefore man whose nature is rational was made holy for this end, that he might be happy in enjoying God.
