

Locating Images in a Concave Mirror

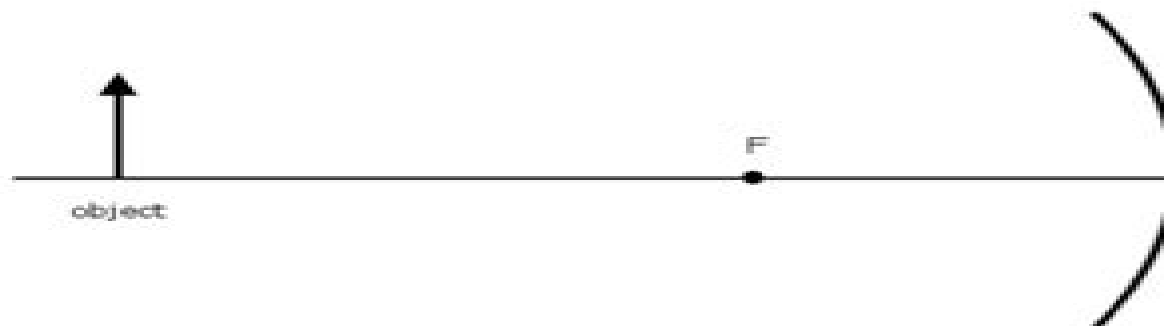

Concave mirrors are also known as converging mirrors. These mirrors are curved "in".

The following rules apply when drawing incident rays and reflected rays using a concave mirror:

1. A light ray parallel to the principal axis will reflect through the focus
2. A light ray through the centre of curvature is reflected back onto itself
3. A ray through F will reflect parallel to the principal axis
4. A ray aimed at the vertex will follow the law of reflection (angle of incidence equals angle of reflection).

To determine the image of an object in front of a concave mirror you need to draw at least 2 incident rays from the top of the object. These rays will be reflected off the mirror and might cross to form an image. Draw the real image where the rays intersect.
