

Essay Sample: Customer Service Plan for the New Customer Service Officer Essay

The case study was solely carried out in small sales and services company. The Company is located in Alabama district at Birmingham. The corporation started experiencing a lot of losses due to problems which came up as a result of the poor reputation it received as a result of delay in delivery of air-conditioning units, wrong units, and failure for the staff to apologize on these shortcomings. Peter, the new customer service officer in the company had the task of refurbishing the image of the enterprise. One of the steps in which one had to undertake was to give out warranty of the air-conditioning service for a certain duration for example one year.

Principle Theory

This gives the customers an opportunity to purchase as usual from the company since they view the risk as being reduced. They also view that their complaints within the stipulated time frame is under control. Another way Peter had to provide a flexible method of payment in which is much friendly to the clients. This can be through monthly installments, hire purchase, and so forth. This in turn makes one be determined in purchasing of services and products from this company. Moreover, Peter should also ensure that the product reaches the customers as soon as possible and more so within the agreed time frame. This can be enhanced by having readily available means of transport which is in good condition in order to avoid chances of breakdown during the course of conveyance. The after sale services should be provided in order to encourage the clients to buy from the company since most view this as a great privilege to be recognized by the business as very important. This is because they feel that they are good to go as what they want is only a phone call or mail away and the delivery of service or goods is made within a short span of time. Apart from this, Peter should also offer free training and education concerning the use and maintenance of the air-conditioners. During this period one ought to take the advantage of rebranding the products name (GRIFFITH, 2010). The client present will change the perception of the company and therefore, continue to get the services as it used to be earlier on. The challenges in the small business in the long-run will be solved and reinstate it back to its original situation of making profits by providing of the services to the clients both within Alabama and even outside this district.

Application of key performance indicators

Key performance indicator (KPI) is defined as an organizational criterion which is used in the assessment of the factors that are very significant to the growth and development of the company. It is very important for any company since it acts as a gauge on its performances. The notable KPIs which are mostly used in several companies include; business process, service level agreement, efficiency, budget, service quality and compliance. These factors will be discussed in length in this piece of work in order to show its relevance for the running of the business. According to GRIFFITH, (2010), KPI, business process plays a very vital role in estimation of the time and percentage used by a given process to complete its process in an industry.
