Bissonette Cramer Report:

Handbook of Road Ecology Rodney van der Ree, Daniel J. Smith, Clara Grilo, 2015-06-15 Winner of the IENE Project Award 2016 This authoritative volume brings together some of the world's leading researchers, academics, practitioners, and transportation agency personnel to present the current status of the ecological sustainability of the linear infrastructure, primarily road, rail, and utility easements that dissect and fragment landscapes globally. It outlines the potential impacts, demonstrates how this infrastructure is being improved, and how broad ecological principles are applied to mitigate the impact of road networks on wildlife. Research and monitoring is an important aspect of road ecology encompassing all phases of a transportation project. This book covers research and monitoring to span the entire project continuum starting with planning and design through construction and into maintenance and management. It focuses on impacts and solutions for species groups and specific regions with particular emphasis on the unique challenges facing Asia, South America, and Africa. Other key features: Contributions from authors originating from over 25 countries including from all continents. Each chapter summarizes important lessons and includes lists of further reading and thoroughly up-to-date references. Highlights principles that address key points relevant to all phases in all road projects. Explains best practices based on a number of successful international case studies. Chapters are stand-alone but they also build upon and complement each other. Extensive cross-referencing directs the reader to relevant material elsewhere in the book. Handbook of Road Ecology offers a comprehensive summary of approximately 30 years of global efforts to quantify the impacts of roads and traffic and implement effective mitigation. As such, it is essential reading for those involved in the planning, design, assessment, and construction of new roads, the management and maintenance of existing roads, and the modifying or retrofitting of existing roads and problem locations. This handbook is an accessible resource for both developed and developing countries, including government transportation agencies, government environmental conservation agencies, NGOs, and road funding and donor organisations. Report, 2008

Safe Passages Jon P. Beckmann, Anthony P. Clevenger, Marcel Huijser, Jodi A. Hilty, 2012-04-20 Safe Passages brings together in a single volume the latest information on the emerging science of road ecology as it relates to mitigating interactions between roads and wildlife. This practical handbook of tools and examples is designed to assist individuals and organizations thinking about or working toward reducing road wildlife impacts. Detailed case studies span a range of scales from site-specific wildlife crossing structures to statewide planning for habitat connectivity to national legislation. Contributors explore the cooperative efforts that are emerging as a result of diverse organizations, including transportation agencies, land and wildlife management agencies, and nongovernmental organizations, finding common ground to tackle important road ecology issues and problems. Safe Passages is an important new resource for local, state, and national level managers and policymakers working on road wildlife issues. Mid-Currituck Bridge Study, Currituck and Dare Counties, 2012

Ecology and Management of Black-tailed and Mule Deer of North

America James R. Heffelfinger, Paul R. Krausman, 2023-04-27 Black tailed and mule deer represent one of the largest distributions of mammals in North America and are symbols of the wide open American West Each chapter in this book was authored by the world's leading experts on that topic Both editors James R Heffelfinger and Paul R Krausman are widely published in the popular and scientific press and recipients of the O C Wallmo Award given every two years to a leading black tailed and mule deer expert who has made significant contributions to the conservation of this species In addition Heffelfinger has chaired the Mule Deer Working Group sponsored by the Western Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies for more than 15 years This working group consists of the leading black tailed and mule deer experts from each of 24 states provinces and territories in western North America putting them at the forefront of all conservation and much of the research on this species The book represents all current knowledge available on these deer including how changing conditions such as fires habitat alteration and loss disease climate change socio economic forces energy development and other aspects are influencing their distribution and abundance now and into the future It takes a completely fresh look at all chapter topics The revisions of distribution taxonomy evolution behavior and new and exciting work being done in deer nutrition migration and movements diseases predation and human dimensions are all assembled in this volume This book will instantly become the foundation for the latest information and management strategies to be implemented on the ground by practitioners and to inform the public Although this book is about deer the topics discussed influence most terrestrial wildlife worldwide and the basic concepts in many of the chapters are applicable to other species Evaluation of Wildlife

Crossing Structures and Fencing on US Highway 93 Evaro to Polson Amanda Ruth Hardy, 2007 The US 93 reconstruction project on the Flathead Indian Reservation in northwest Montana represents one of the most extensive wildlife sensitive highway design efforts to occur in the continental United States The reconstruction will include installations of 42 fish and wildlife crossing structures and approximately 15 mi 24 km of wildlife exclusion fencing for a total investment of over 9 million dollars This report documents the success of using a context sensitive approach to collaboratively redesign a rural highway within a multiple use landscape that accommodates the needs and concerns of different institutions cultures and priorities Further this report introduces baseline field data collection methods and results that are being used to evaluate how the wildlife crossing structures and wildlife fencing affect deer and bear vehicle collisions and movements in a multiple use rural landscape The preconstruction data summarized here and in combination with complementary post construction data will address the following goals of the evaluation study 1 determine what effect US 93 wildlife crossing structures and fencing have on the frequency of animal vehicle collisions and successful animal highway crossings 2 document the design decision making processes and lessons learned as a case study and 3 identify best management practices and further research These issues are addressed via a literature review of important considerations related to locating designing and evaluating the effectiveness of wildlife crossings and exclusion fencing a case study and project history summary and synthesis of field data collection efforts overview of other relevant and repeatable field studies and a discussion about the measures of effectiveness and post construction data collection recommendations The ultimate value of the information in this report will be realized when the reconstruction is complete and post construction field data is collected to comparatively assess the effect of the wildlife mitigation on the parameters of interest identified in the goals Perhaps one of the most important insights gained from the preconstruction research is that due to the myriad sources of unquantifiable variation in the environment many years of monitoring are necessary to make valid inferences Given the paucity of long term before after field studies assessing the effects of wildlife exclusion fencing and crossing structures on wildlife and driver safety the US 93 wildlife mitigation evaluation when completed will provide useful results lessons learned and best management practices to guide other wildlife mitigation efforts in the future Report Wisconsin. substances that are considered valuable in their relatively unmodified natural form A natural resource s value rests in the amount of the material available and the demand for it The latter is determined by its usefulness to production A commodity is generally considered a natural resource when the primary activities associated with it are extraction and purification as opposed to creation Thus mining petroleum extraction fishing hunting and forestry are generally considered natural resource industries while agriculture is not This book presents the latest information from around the globe in this diverse and
