Gao,1997-10-30 In this first comparative study of Chinese and Zimbabwean railway experiences Gao examines the role played by technological progress in generating significant social change His principal concern is with indigenous people whose efforts to meet this technological advance has been neglected or underestimated Gao shows how different cultural traditions political situations and individual interests create an attractive variety of local responses to the challenges and opportunities afforded by technology He not only describes the final consequences of railway development but emphasizes the dynamic process by which indigenous people first derived then gradually lost most of the gains from modern transport advances In addition Gao explores a number of permanent impacts of railways on the two areas including demographic and structural changes and divisions of race and class An intriguing study for researchers and students of imperialism and Chinese and African history Leadership ,1991 Art Books ,1981 Including an international directory of museum permanent collection catalogs Wetlands of South Africa G.
