Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and learners, to indicate the requirements of the examination. However, we have not been able to adjust it to reflect the full range of answers that would have been seen as a part of the normal moderation and marking process, and it does not necessarily contain all the possible alternatives that might have arisen. Cambridge will not enter into discussions about the mark scheme.

Checkpoint Maths 2005 Mark Scheme:

Mathematical Modeling and Computational Predictions in Oncoimmunology Vladimir A. Kuznetsov, Heiko Enderling, Mark Chaplain, 2024-06-06 Cancer is a complex adaptive dynamic system that causes both local and systemic failures in the patient. Cancer is caused by a number of gain of function and loss of function events that lead to cells proliferating without control by the host organism over time. In cancer, the immune system modulates cancer cell population heterogeneity and plays a crucial role in disease outcomes. The immune system itself also generates multiple clones of different cell types with some clones proliferating quickly and maturing into effector cells. By creating regulatory signals and their networks and generating effector cells and molecules, the immune system recognizes and kills abnormal cells. Anti-cancer immune mechanisms are realized as multi-layer nonlinear cellular and molecular interactions. A number of factors determine the outcome of immune system tumor interactions, including cancer-associated antigens, immune cells, and host organisms. Mark Schemes Pack:
